Gold, Always Welcome.
Spain's Religious Hate.
Hiccoughs and Bubbles.
Europe's Sour Loans.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MEXICO'S GOVERNMENT discovers ancient Aztec tombs with treasures as rich as those in the tomb of Tut-Ank-Hamen.

Dozens of golden crowns, pearls, enormous in size, precious stones of all kinds, lead to the belief that the hidden gold treasure of the Incas will be found. The Spanish conquerors were never able to discover this treasure, even by hideous torture.

The discovery might change Mexico suddenly to a gold basis nation of the first order, and fill us all with profound respect.

GOLD INTERESTS the world, especially the amount of it that India possesses. Since England went off the gold basis, India has sent her $100,000,000 in gold.

Intelligent gentlemen of the Bank of France seem to accumulate most of it. They even continue to draw on our gold reserves, and took from us $12,000,000 gold last Saturday morning. There is no doubt in the French mind as to the value of a gold basis.

POLITICAL AGITATION in Spain is of the worst kind, based on religious hatreds.

A mob of 3,000 gathered around the jail at Bilbao yesterday intent on lynching 41 Catholics held as prisoners, following the killing of four persons in a clash between Catholics and non-Catholics.

Artillerymen protected the Catholic prisoners, and the mob, made up of Communists starting a general strike, pacified by the release of two Communist prisoners, marched away with them in triumph, waving the red flag and singing the Internationale.

On the same day, at dawn, crowds attempted to burn Catholic churches in three towns, Moncada, Alfaro Del Patriarcho and Mazarrocho. Police and watchmen saved the churches.

MRS. EDITH CANTRELL, of Humphrey, Ark., suffering with hiccoughs for 24 days, sees relief in sight. L. P. McLaughlin, Mayor of her town, has sent her two bottles of champagne, and this information:

"Properly iced, and in moderate doses, this will effect a cure, the gas in the wine reacting against the gas in the stomach which brings about the hiccoughs."

IT IS BELIEVED that many serious attacks of hiccoughs will soon occur in Mayor McLaughlin's town.

In Ringling's Circus one big elephant had violent chills, and the keeper poured a gallon of strong, hot water and whisky down its throat. Five minutes later, every elephant in the line was shaking violently.

MOURNFUL NEWS comes from Europe in installments. One of Mr. Ochs' correspondents wires from Vienna that Austria, Bulgaria, Greece and Jugoslavia will default on $600,000,000 of private loans made by American bankers.

It is a comfort to announce on the authority of one of the ablest bankers that this amount is much exaggerated, if it refers to private loans.

ALSO, IF THOSE countries decide, irresponsibly, to call off private loans, putting government loans ahead of them, they will hear of something to their disadvantage from American bankers.

The bankers will see to it that countries deliberately defaulting do not do any business in this country until they pay what they owe. This applies to those that show bad faith.

MRS. PAGAN, of New York, shot two women, killing one, then shot herself. The quarrel was about a man. You could hardly guess what she wrote to her husband.

"Take my insurance money and bury me. Give my clothes to the poor. If the two women I shot are dead, bury them. Feed our two dogs, do not put them on the street. Love. Your darling wife."

It was truly written, in the song of songs, "Love is as strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave."

SENATOR VANDENBERG, of Michigan, with the best intentions, introduces a bill to give complete independence to the Philippines, in 1952, 20 years hence, if they wish it then.

Meanwhile immigration restrictions against Filipinos and tariff walls will be erected in this country gradually. It is said to be "an administration bill."

WHY TURN the Philippine Islands loose? We need a landing place in Asia, in these flying days. We HAVE it, why not KEEP it?

There will never be any such thing as "Philippine independence," for the Filipinos could not keep the islands long. They were not able to keep them from Japan. One look at Manchuria shows what would happen to the Philippines.

EUROPE CONCLUDES that the matter of international debts can be arranged as well WITHOUT the presence of Uncle Sam at the discussion. It is suggested now that all payments be called off until after 1933.

Our friends across the ocean believe that we want to do as we are told, but don't quite dare, with an election coming. So they will go ahead and do our deciding for us.

This "creditor's meeting" without the creditor will be novel!y.

DAWES MADE CREDIT POOL PRESIDENT

Hoover Appoints Ex-Envoy As Head of Two Billion Reconstruction Project

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Gen. Charles G. Dawes was today named by President Hoover to head the new $2,000,000,000 Federal Reconstruction Corporation.

At the same time, in an eleventh-hour switch, the President appointed Secretary of State Stimson to take Dawes' place as chairman of the American delegation to the Geneva arms conference.

Secretary Stimson, however, will not sail with the other American delegates from New York tomorrow. He will go to Geneva at some later date.

CONFERENCES HELD

The selection of Gen. Dawes to head the new Reconstruction Corporation came as a result of conferences which he has had with President Hoover during the last few days.

Dawes will have the title of president of the corporation, and Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, will be chairman of the corporation's board of directors. Other directors of the corporation will be appointed later.

It was only a week ago that Gen. Dawes startled Washington with the announcement that he would resign at an early date as ambassador to Great Britain and as chairman of the Geneva conference delegation and return to his banking interests in Chicago as a private citizen.

SCORES RUMORS

The manner in which the announcement was made led to considerable speculation as to whether Dawes was not contemplating becoming a candidate for President, but the General soon put a stop to it by saying that it was "all damned nonsense."

President Hoover apparently became convinced that Gen. Dawes could render greater service as head of the new credit organization than at Geneva. The American delegates are not expected to play any important part in the Geneva deliberations. For the real issues there are expected to center around reduction of Europes standing armies, rather than further naval limitation.

Gen. Dawes held a press conference at the State Department a few moments after President Hoover had made the announcement. It was a typical Dawes interview. Gripping his undersiung pipe between his teeth and pounding the table with his fist, Dawes said:

"I do not consider this a talking job. When one is beginning an important work it is not the time to talk about it, and when we have accomplished the job it is not necessary.

"That is all I have to say in that connection."

Then he strode out, slamming the door behind him with a bang.

Ready!

MISS RUTH GORDON

Miss Gordon, the only woman witness in the waiting room today when the courts granted a week's postponement in the trial of Mayor Charles H. Kline. About 40 waiting witnesses (60 were subpenaed) were excused.

KLINE TRIAL POSTPONED TO MONDAY

Subpenas of 59 Witnesses Kept in Force by Court Rule Fought by Defense

The trial of Mayor Charles H. Kline and his deposed director of supplies, Bertram L. Succop, on charges of malfeasance in office, scheduled to start today, was postponed unstart today, was postponed until Monday in Criminal Court today.

The postponement was granted against protest of the Mayor's counsel by Judge James H. Gray, whose public criticism of the Kline administration months ago was one of the reasons the Mayor sought a change of venu. In his answer to the Mayor's petition for that change, District Attorney Andrew T. Park told the Supreme Court Judge Gray "has in no way, directly or indirectly, participated in the procuring of the indictments against petitioners or otherwise had any part in the proceedings against petitioners up to this time."

Forty-three of 59 witnesses who appeared were quizzed by Prosecutor Park and his aides, presumably to refresh their minds as to testimony they will give at the trial. They were then instructed to return Monday. Some, who failed to appear, were said to have responded by telephone. One sent a physician's certificate.

OFFICIALS APPEAR

Among those who answered the summons today were Frank L. Swaney, Mayor's secretary; Dr. J. S. Hammers, superintendent of Mayview, and City Clerk Robert Clark.

When Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt presented the motion for postponement of the trial, Attorney E. G. Coll, representing the Mayor, interjected:

"I don't think it is proper for this court to take any action. The Supreme Court has said that all proceedings in this case are stayed."

Langfitt said:

"We have summoned about 60 witnesses and are anxious that these subpenas hold good to save the expense of subpenaing them again."

Judge Gray observed:

"I don't see why we should not preserve the status of this case. If the Supreme Court grants a change of venue, that ends the matter in this court. This delay cannot be attributed to the Commonwealth."

The court then ordered the trial continued.

PROSECUTORS AGREE

Decision to ask for the continuance was reached following a conference between District Attorney Park, Langfitt and Special Prosecutor Earl F. Reed.

The Supreme Court made the rule on Kline's request returnable next Thursday. Under ordinary circumstances a decision would not be made until that time.

Controller James F. Kerr said today, that when he receives the audit of the delinquent tax department of deposed City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley, he will study it a day or two, before giving out the contents. This report is expected to be in the Controller's hands by Thursday the typing of it having been completed by Price, Waterhouse & Co., who made the audit.

The League Issue Again?

The following editorial appeared in the January 16 issue of the New York Evening Sun, usually Republican in politics.

A RAINBOW of hope for the Republican party shone in Philadelphia last week. The League of Nations Association held a convention and decided upon "an aggressive program" toward full and unqualified American membership in the league. This is to be made an issue wherever possible in Congress districts.

The idea seemed to ripple through the meeting that if Newton D. Baker were elected president he could put the United States into the league right quickly. Yet this was not a meeting entirely of Democrats. George W. Wickersham was there. So was Norman Thomas, whom Mr. Wickersham supported for Borough President last fall. So was Irving Fisher. All for the league and the league for all.

This promise to drag the league issue into the presidential campaign—on the Democratic side, of course—should cause sad hearts in Washington to be lifted up. Get league adherence into the Democratic platform of 1932 and the Republicans will sail out of the doldrums. General gloom will turn into healthful exasperation.

It is twelve years since the American voters put the weight of their votes against the league idea. The leaguers feel that 1920, the great and solemn referendum, has been forgotten. The donkey may have forgotten, but not the elephant.

JURY TO TRY MRS. JUDD SOUGHT

Confessed Slayer Nervous As Throngs Battle to Get Few Seats in Room

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 19.—(A.P.)—Pale but calm, Winnie Ruth Judd appeared in court today to answer for the slaying of Agnes Anne Leroi.

Thirty-five women and 27 men, the only spectators Judge Howard C. Speakman's small court room could accommodate, lined the walls. The jury panel of more than 80 took nearly all the available seats.

Would-be spectators fought at the door. Clothes were torn and faces scratched.

The 26-year-old confessed killer flashed her large blue eyes from face to face as selection was started of the jury of men who wil sit in judgment on her.

KISSES FATHER

She is charged with first degree murder in connection with the deaths of Mrs. Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, first her friends and then her rivals. The bodies of the two women, Miss Samuelson's dismembered, were found in two trunks and a suitcase in a Los Angeles railway station last October 19.

Mrs. Judd wore a simple dark blue dress. She appeared less frail than when she entered the Maricopa County Jail last October 30.

Her eyes were downcast as the formal charge was read.

The Rev. H. J. McKinnell, of Darlington, Ind., father of the bobbed-hair defendant, followed her into the courtroom and leaned across the counsel table to kiss her. She squeezed his hand and looked into his eyes for a moment before the aged retired minister left the court. Mrs. McKinnell, her mother, did not enter. Her brother, B. J. McKinnell, also departed after the charge had been read.

HUSBAND AT SIDE

Dr. William C. Judd, her husband, remained close by her side, occasionally reaching over to pat her shoulder.

Mrs. Judd's attention lagged when her counsel examined members of the grand jury panel, but she fingered her handkerchief nervously and glanced sidewise at her husband when Assistant County Attorney G. A. Rodgers indicated a demand for the death penalty when he questioned each talesman closely regarding possible prejudice against capital punishment.

During a brief court recess, after two jurors had been accepted by both prosecution and defense, Mrs. Judd curled up in her chair, with one foot under her, to smile at her husband, as newspaper photographers' flashlights flickered about her.

MOB MENACES, MOVE SUSPECT

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Jan. 19.—(INS.)—William Grimm, 26, of Avonmore, near here, was captured by police scouring nearby hills today and charged with attacking Mrs. Mary Mix, an 82-year-old widow.

The prisoner was spirited away to the Armstrong County jail at Kittanning to save him from action of a mob of 200 enraged citizens who sought to lynch him.

Grimm, with his mother, Mrs. William Grimm, resided at the home of Mrs. Mix.

Inmate at Woodville Strangled By Sheet

Jacob Meyers, 78, of Brackenridge, an inmate of the County Home at Woodville, died of strangulation early today after he had fallen from his bed.

Meyers was strangled on a "tie sheet" with which he was fastened to his bed, according to a morgue report. After an investigation Coroner's deputies reported the death was accidental.

VOTE MACHINES IN NEW DELAY

Possibility that Allegheny County will not have its voting machines for use in the April primary election was seen in the County Commissioners meeting today.

Such a likelihood was revealed when John W. Vickerman, head of the elections bureau, read a letter from Proctor Brady, president of the Poole Company, of Baltimore.

The letter informed Vickerman that the company is only now making too ls for the parts needed for the changes ordered by Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish on the 1,100 machines owned by the county.

Vickerman said:

"The Poole Engineering and Machine Company are the most unsatisfactory people I have dealt with in 30 years.

"They are evasive and indefinite."

State Senator Frank J. Harris, chairman of the Senate Investigating committee, today moved for an investigation of the charge of Secretary of the Commonwealth Beamish that the latter had been offered a $20,000 bribe to favor the Shoup Vote Maching Company.

With the Senator's move, announcement was made in Philadelphia that the Shoup Company officially denied that any agent of the firm had been hired to offer Beamish a bribe.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(INS.)—Lawrence Tibbett, baritone, was confined to his home today because of a painful wound in the foot inflicted accidentally while he was singing in "Peter Ibbetson" at the Metropolitan Opera House.

In one scene, Tibbett, appearing in the role of Col. Ibbetson, is clubbed down by another character, played last night by Edward Johnson.

Tibbett fell among pieces of a window pane smashed in the struggle on the stage. A piece of glass inflicted a deep cut on his foot.

Guerin Death Rumor Checked in London

LONDON, Jan. 19—(INS.)—Scotland Yard today was endeavoring to verify reports that Eddie Guerin, long-famous international crook, who escaped from Devil's Island, had died in London over the week-end.

Robert Considine, international crook, awaiting sentence for 68 burglaries here, said he shot Guerin while in London prison in 1907 and was sentenced to life imprisonment. The sentence later was commuted.

1,000 Pleas for Aid Made to Agency In One Day

Welfare agencies in Allegheny County must have at least $7,000,000 more if the minimum requirements of the unemployed are to be met, a survey by the Federation of Social Agencies revealed. Five hundred new appeals are being received daily from families who never before asked help.

Dr. Edward N. Klopper, director of the federation, said today:

"On $7,000,000, we can hope to get through. If conditions get worse, we cannot. But we are all praying."

Director of the clearing house for all the relief agencies of the county, Dr. Klopper believes the county and state should furnish the relief, in addition to the $6,000,000 goal of the Welfare Fund.

CONTINGENT GIFTS

Even the $6,000,000, he pointed out, was contingent on the $600,000 conditionally promised the Welfare Fund by the County Commissioners, and on the $750,000 promised by a group of in-

Whether Mrs. Tait had been murdered and thrown into the pond, or had accidentally fallen in, was under investigation.

Murray's Attack Shocks Dry League Leaders

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(A.P.)—A startled Anti-Saloon League convention weighed today a surprise suggestion from Gov. Murray, of Oklahoma, that a more satisfactory form of liquor control might be substituted for existing prohibition. He suggested a zone system to ally states wishing similar kinds of beverages and those desiring to remain dry.

Recognized as a dry, the picturesque "Alfalfa Bill" was given prominent place on last night's program of the big biennial convention, following close upon an address by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., defending the prohibition part he and other Southern churchmen had played in political campaigns, and promising more of the same if necessary.

The Oklahoman had distributed to the press a speech which among other things asserted he believed "that prohibition will not prove the wisest legal solution of the control of the liquor traffic."

This sentence and some others like it he left unuttered when he mounted the platform, but the general tenure of the original draft was maintained and afterward he explained he would stand absolutely back of the written version, saying:

"I got started off wrong and never could get back. I kept a close eye on that crowd and I knew they weren't in sympathy with my views. The mentality of the crowd wasn't what I expected."

With that he let the matter pass.

His analysis of the audience's sympathies apparently was correct. They followed his words closely but with almost no applause.

LAVAL INSISTS ON PAYMENTS BY GERMANY

France Won't Yield Unless Her Debts Are Canceled; U. S. Opposes Extension

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—Premier Laval and Fernand Bouisson, president of the Chamber of Deputies, told the chamber today that unless her creditors remit a corresponding portion of the debts France owes, this country will not forego her right to reparations from Germany.

The Premier's statement was by way of a declaration of policy of his new government. The assertions by both were an affirmation of the recognized French policy.

Before the chamber assembled, government officials were thinking over a plan to postpone the proposed debts conference tentatively scheduled for January 25 at Lausanne until after the elections in France, Germany and the United States. Premier Laval sought the American view on that proposal from United States Ambassador Edge yesterday.

In his speech to the chamber the Premier also reiterated the French thesis that security is the only basis for disarmament. Earlier in the day Andre Tardieu, now minister of war, was appointed head of the French delegation to the disarmament parley at Geneva.

U. S. Cold to Overture For Debt Extension

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—The latest European overture for war debt postponement has found no encouragement in Washington.

The American government is expected to inform Premier Laval of France, in response to his inquiry, that a settlement of the troubles now vexing European statesmen must be sought in Europe, not here.

There is no disposition to be blunt about it, nor to close the door entirely to further American leniency. If the European nations themselves take such steps as to restore confidence among themselves, a plea for further debt postponement might find sympathy here, it was said.

Britain Uninformed On Move to Prolong Truce

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—Great Britain has not been officially informed of Premier Laval's action in seeking information for France regarding the American attitude toward a proposal to extend the Hoover moratorium until some time toward the end of this year.

The British view has been that after the European powers had met at Lausanne and outlined their own proposals, then the European plan might be discussed with Washington.

Germany Against Proposal To Postpone Parley

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—Any plan to postpone the reparations conference at Lausanne will be "absolutely unacceptable" to Germany, it was stated in government circles today. Besides, a government spokesman said, Germany must be given a voice in any plan to extend the reparation moratorium.

COAST GUARDS JOIN FLOOD RESCUERS

Units Sent to Pick Up Thousands Still Periled; Mississippi Rouses Fears

International News Service.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Jan. 19.—Coast Guard units were speeding toward Northwestern Mississippi today to plunge into the work of rescuing thousands of families endangered by flood waters.

A rescue detail of 26 Coast Guardsmen, including five captains, were en route from Chicago, bringing six power boats with which to evacuate stricken residents from the deluged area.

Coast Guard stations along the Gulf of Mexico were also dispatching rescue crews to this delta region which has been converted by rising rivers into an inland sea 100 miles long and 25 miles wide.

The flood today centered its fury on Greenwood as the consequence of a 25-foot rupture in the Columbus and Greenville Railroad levee on the Yazoo River. A wall of water inundated the north section of this city, swirling into more than 200 homes and flooding business houses.

The most serious situation created by the vast flood continued to prevail in the Tippo basin north of here, where more than 2,000 inhabitants were marooned with boats their only chance of escape.

While its tributaries spread devastation over eight counties, the Mississippi itself continued to rise, causing grave concern. The "father of waters" today was one foot above flood stage and an additional rise of two feet was anticipated. Nearly 50,000 dwellers are affected.

CONGRESSMEN URGE BEER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—Another group of anti-prohibition Congressmen went before a Senate committee today to advocate the Bingham 4 per cent beer bill.

Representative Dickstein (Dem.), of New York, contended employment of the whole Army "couldn't stop this thing going on today," Dickstine said:

"Before prohibition if you asked a girl to take a drink she would smack you in the face; now, if you haven't one to offer, she will kick you."

Meanwhile, the House Judiciary Committee set February 16 for consideration of the prohibition proposal submitted by the Republican and Democratic wet blocs. The resolutions introduced by Representatives Beck, of Pennsylvania, and Linthicum, of Maryland, dealt with submission of the Eighteenth Amendment to the people through state conventions. They propose return of liquor control to the states except for federal jurisdiction over interstate shipments.

WIDOW LEADS RACKET WAR

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—The widow of a cleaner slain by racketeers he fought will try to bring his slayers to justice.

Her offer of assistance was accepted yesterday by the State's Attorney's office investigating the recent killing of her husband, Benjamin Rosenberg.

At her request subpenas were issued for Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, whom she said was head of the Cleaners' and Dyers' Institute; Murray Humphreys, a lieutenant of "Scarface Al" Capone, and others identified with cleaners' unions.

As she left the State Attorney's office, she spurned protection. She said:

"Perhaps they will kill me, but I'm practically dead now, and my only ambition is to see justice done."

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 19—(INS.)—Thirteen Senators, followers of Gov. La Follette, walked out today declaring they will not attend Senate sessions until the conservative majority is ready to act on some relief bill.

JOBLESS NEED $7,000,000

dividuals should the rest of the $6,000,000 be raised.

Dr. Klopper said:

"If the Emergency Relief Association had its $2,000,000 of the $6,000,000, it could put 11,000 men to work."

This association provides jobs paying a basic rate of $12 a week until $100 has been earned. It has 7,000 so employed, 12,000 on a waiting list.

Dr. Klopper explained that the $7,000,000 was additional and must be secured, explaining:

"We expected the inquiries for help to drop after Christmas. They generally do. But one day, January 14, we had over 1,000 requests for help pass through our social service exchange. Of these, nearly half already had been registered, which indicated that many were already receiving help.

PRESSURE TERRIFIC

"The pressure is terrific. I don't believe anyone can expect that relief be conducted as adequately as in times of prosperity. No one can demand it; it's not reasonable. The pressure for help is so enormous, we must come to some understanding.

"It is obvious that the state and counts must help first before the federal government."

He then outlined the plan for financing relief, as follows:

The Talbot bill, which depends on a court decision as to its constitutionality, would provide $1,600,000 to Allegheny County, half to city and half to the area outside. This would be spent through the County Poor Board and the City Department of Welfare, he stated.

The Poor Board has been aiding 16,000 families, but now has no funds. Relief to these 16,000 families has ceased. Taxes will not be available until June. The board has asked to increase the poor tax levy to get a loan on it of $1,225,000, and needs more help from the state. Legality of a tax levy increase is in doubt.

DEMAND ON COUNTY

The county has been asked for $4,000,000 to be spent on work, for jobs, inside and outside the city.

These, totaling $6,825,000, be placed at the minimum.

Dr. Klopper added:

"The demands are tremendous, and the organizations don't bar anyone, even if he owns property. Of course, it's not fair to help a family that has resources—whether relatives or others who can help them—when there are thousands of families needing assistance who have none.

"A healthy family of father, mother and three children can get along, for food only, at a minimum of $5.70 a week. If the children are undernourished it costs more. Food, shelter and clothing can be had for $15 minimum."

GORDON BACKS BANK QUIZ HERE

Dr. William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking, today assured his special deputy, George F. Taylor, Jr., that he would back him to the limit in prosecution of any person believed criminally implicated in the closing of the Franklin Savings and Trust Company, where it is alleged, unsecured city funds were deposited.

Here to review the work of his Second District Realization Corporation, formed to liquidate frozen assets of closed banks in Western Pennsylvania, and to appoint a committee to consider collateral loans in these institutions, Gordon said:

"I don't care what part of the state a man is in, I don't care whether he is of high or low degree, if he thinks that he can break the state banking laws and get away with it, he is crazy.

"I'll prosecute anyone who has violated the law."

Gordon outlined for the first time, publicly, his requirements before Washington (Pa.) banks can be reopened. His suggestion is that an entirely new institution be chartered, to take over the cream of assets from the three closed banks of Washington's four. Depositors must have access to a good part of their deposits at once, Gordon says, although the balance can be deferred or paid with stock.

PRIZE WINNER SEEKING WORK

Objecting because "the joke has gone too far," Miss Marguerite Lennon, 1400 Hampshire avenue, Beechview, today explained that wide newspaper publicity stating that she had offered to marry any respectable white man who gave her father $10,000 arose over a misunderstanding.

Miss Lennon, a beauty prize winner, said:

"When I met a reporter some time ago, and laughingly said that I'd marry any respectable white man for $10,000, I never thought it would go further. I had been telling him how job after job had been refused me because I 'was dressed too neatly,' even though I needed a job badly."

Here the mother, Mrs. Edward J. Lennon, took up the story:

"I was amazed when I saw my daughter's picture in the newspaper with a story that she would marry for $10,000. I didn't say anything about it, though, and thought the tale would die down. Since it has cropped up again, however, I think the joke has gone too far; it's time to stop all these rumors and deny that she will marry any man for $10,000 or for any amount."

Miss Lennon said:

"My only desire now is to get a job."

RAILROAD MEN REPLY ON CUT

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—Labor made its reply today to the railways' request for a voluntary 10 per cent wage reduction, but it was not made public.

In the briefest session of the employment conferences that have been under way since last midweek, the union delegates took up the wage proposal for the first time and asked the railroad presidents for additional information on their plan. This was promised.

There was no general discussion in the meeting, which occupied only one hour and a quarter. Adjournment was taken until tomorrow.

Until today the specific problem of wages had not been considered in the meetings. Yesterday, the employes proposed that jobs be increased 10 per cent, the railroads guaranteeing to employ the number of men working in 1930 if the brotherhoods agreed to listen to the 10 per cent wage cut.

Internment by U. S. Faces Heiress' Royal Husband

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(Universal.)—Prince Geronimo Rospigliosi, son of the former Marie Reid, of New Orleans, may be interned on Ellis Island when he arrives in New York on Friday aboard the S. S. Vulcania with his American heiress-bride, the former Marian Snowden, it was learned today.

Mrs. Walter Sherman Davidson, of Newport, R. I., mother and guardian of Marian, has interested Secretary of State Stimson himself in her attempt to have the marriage of her ward and the Italian Prince annulled, while Patrick Cardinal Hayes, of New York, has informed the Vatican that the marriage is illegal according to the laws of Rhode Island.

The New York bank which holds the purse-strings of Marian's trust fund is said to be interested in preparing a legal struggle to prevent Prince Rospigliosi, charged here with being deeply in debt, from acquiring an American fortune. Marian, it is explained, was married without the consent of her mother, an illegal act for a ward in chancery.

Marian met the prince at Cannes in September, Mrs. Davidson said, and he immediately proposed. When he was refused because of Mrs. Davidson's intervention, the prince induced Marian to go to Milan in her mother's automobile.

PROBERS DELAY ACTION ON FIGHT TO IMPEACH MELLON

HEARINGS HALT FOR SURVEY OF DATA

Original Olaya Cable Denying Oil Deal With Secretary Wanted for Inspection

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—Final action on the Patman resolution seeking the impeachment of Secretary Mellon was postponed indefinitely today by the House Judiciary Committee.

This action was explained not to mean the case was dropped, but that future consideration would await the printing of the hearings and the receipt of material the committee has requested.

At a brief executive session today Representative Patman (Dem.), of Texas, and Alexander W. Gregg, Mellon's representative, closed their arguments.

DENIES OIL DEAL

The material requested includes the original cable sent by President Olaya, of Colombia, to his legation here which, in turn, was laid before the committee today, denying that he ever had discussed the Barco oil concession with Mellon.

Patman had charged that the Secretary had a hand in influencing American bankers to make a loan to Colombia, which went forward shortly after the Mellon-controlled Gulf Oil Corporation received a concession from Colombia to valuable oil lands in the Barco concession.

The cable read by Gregg said, in part:

"In the negotiation of the bank credit to Colombia, neither the Barco concession nor any point relative to petroleum legislation was taken into account in any way.

"I never discussed nor even spoke with Secretary Mellon regarding the Barco concession nor regarding any matters of the American government in order that Colombia might obtain credit. The conversation with Mr. Mellon referred to in the report of El Tempo of Bogota, of August 8 of last year, was in the nature of general appreciation regarding economic conditions in Colombia."

Regarded as the most important of these reform measures is the proposed law classifying criminal attacks on women as capital offenses punishable by death.

Meanwhile Mrs. Granville Fortescue, Eastern society leader; her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, of the United States Navy, and two naval enlisted men, E. J. Lord and Albert Jones, remained in custody on the U. S. warship Alton in Pearl Harbor.

The big fish was caught in the Gulf Stream off Miami by a fishing party headed by Capt. Tommy Gifford. Fishermen said they knew of but three recorded catches of whale-shark in South Florida waters.

None was mounted, but this one will be, its captors said, at a cost of approximately $2,000. Scientifically, the fish is known as Rhinedon-Typhus. It has a slate gray body with white spots, and authorities say it is the only variety with a mouth big enough to swallow a man at one gulp.

COOLIDGE AIRS SLUMP VIEWS

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Calvin Coolidge says a general lack of judgment contributed to the present economic situation.

Writing in the American Magazine, the former President discusses conditions, praises the nations banking system and denounces hoarders. In treating of the causes of the slump he says:

"It is impossible to point out any general moral lapse, any widespread dishonesty. The most we can say is that there has been a general lack of judgment so widespread as to involve practically the whole country.

"We have found out that we were not so big as we thought we were. We were riding too high. We shall have to keep nearer the ground. We may not feel so elated, but we shall be much safer.

"Our national banking system is as sound as generations of experience have been able to make it."

Five men sought to succeed Gov. Long as the election to nominate all state officers and a new Legislature was held. The Democratic nomination in Louisiana virtually assures election.

From its beginning, the campaign has been O. K. Allen, chairman of the State Highway Commission for Governor and a complete slate of Long-indorsed candidates "against the field."

Men's Quality Overcoat Scoop Sends Prices Sharply Downward Gigantic Sale of $35 and $40 Coats at $19.75 Starts Tomorrow

GIMBEL PURCHASE SKYROCKETS VALUES

VALUES BRING STORE CROWDS, SAYS GIMBELS

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 17. — Genuine quality, purchased from reputable sources, and offered the public at prices within the reach of modern shrunken budgets will bring customers into stores during January, emphasizes Gimbel Brothers, Pittsburgh, in offering 1,000 overcoats representing a cash purchase from a nationally-known manufacturer at $19.75.

"Frankly," they say, "we barked our judgment to the limit and beyond in laying cash on the barrel-head for this event. We purposely searched everywhere. We bought only when we discovered the cream of surplus stocks. In addition, we were able in December to keep manufacturer's employes busy on overcoats at and below actual mill cost prices.

"It is our firm opinion that now is the time to strike and that many of the general public have purposely delayed making many needed purchases such as overcoats, anticipating January sale promotions. The overcoat event we inaugurate January 20th is evidence of our faith in quality at a price, rightly timed."

GIMBELS GIVES WHAT PUBLIC WANTS

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 19. — Gimbels, Pittsburgh, tomorrow responds to the analyzed needs of Pittsburgh men at a price ascertained to be below that which most men are willing to pay for overcoats today. The event headlines overcoats of a kind now selling elsewhere at $35 and $40, which will be offered at the single rock-bottom price of $19.75.

Figures revealed by the store show that 86 per cent of the men in Pittsburgh families interviewed have not yet bought their winter overcoats, and that 67.5 per cent expect to do so this month.

It is evident that Gimbels overcoat sale at $19.75, which begins tomorrow, will be one of timely interest, particularly in view of the generous amount of winter weather promised in the offing.

SALE INCLUDES ALL BRAND NEW STYLES, COLORS

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 19. — Every man, whether he be banker, lawyer, priest, butcher, baker or candlestick-maker—18 years old or 68—"long stout," "short thin" or any combination of height and waistline in between, will find the overcoat he needs and looks best in tomorrow, says Gimbels in proclaiming a remarkable sale of overcoats at a new low price of $19.75.

Coupled with this assertion comes the statement that the colors and styles included in this great event are those most men are wearing and want to wear today.

There will be becoming blues, conservative Oxford and Cambridge grays, and the new browns, as well as dressy plaid backs, overplaids, and fancy mixtures.

Styles, too, will disappoint no man. The event includes double-breasted fitted and box coats, Chesterfields, town ulsters, raglans, and tubular college models. Some have cushion shoulders, others rope shoulders; some have plain collars, others smart velvet collars.

GIMBELS PRICES SHAKE TRADE

NEW YORK, Jan. 13. — Probably no single price effort that has been put into effect the past twelve months has shaken the Pittsburgh and national clothing market as thoroughly as that of Gimbel Brothers, the week beginning Saturday, December 26.

The large Pittsburgh store advertised men's suits at $19.50, Christmas Day, four out of five with two trousers, and received a response of $27,000 in the three days succeeding this first published announcement.

Aggressively following through on this event, Gimbels purchased the entire surplus stock of Alfred Decker & Cohn, Chicago merchant princes, and offered regular $39 to $65 suits at $29 in advertising appearing in Pittsburgh papers New Year's Day.

The second sale sold $20,000 at retail and again proved the faith and confidence of Pittsburgh men in this great organization.

SLOW SEASON PLAYS IN HANDS OF THE PUBLIC

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. — The surplus stocks of new overcoats now on the shelves of even the makers of the best and fastest-moving goods may be laid at the doorstep of delayed winter rather than blamed upon the depression, said an eminent merchandising and marketing bureau today.

"It is not to be wondered that dull business, particularly in the overcoat industry, should prevail with winter thermometers hovering in the neighborhood of 64," they add.

"The buying public has an unexcelled chance, certainly unique in this generation at least, of purchasing better overcoats at astonishingly low prices and right at the time when they need coats most, with winter snow and blizzards just around the corner. Unseasonable weather offers the opportunity for men to replenish their wardrobes with coats that will wear two and three years at prices lower than may be expected within the next dozen years."

UPWARD SWING ALREADY BEGUN

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Interviews with mill men, clothing manufacturers and retail executives in the closing days of 1931 disclosed the general opinion that overcoat prices have come down to a level that cannot be expected to continue during 1932.

Higher overcoat prices are certain, according to industrialists. For the last couple of years well-dressed men have been gnawing away at their reserves. Now they are actually in need of new coats or at least weary of the sameness of their old coats and about to break loose. When they do drag their anchors, the spree will be epoch-making and overcoat prices will start upward as general business improves.

Dick Powell Says, "Boy, oh Boy!"

When Dick Powell, well-dressed and personable master of ceremonies of Warner Brothers Stanley Theater, smiled, it was a faceful! "Boy, oh boy! That's the kind of coat I like. What's the tax? $19.75? No foolin'! How in the world do you fellows do it!"

EXTRA!

NEWS FLASH—Pittsburgh, Jan. 19—The most startling overcoat sale in Gimbels history begins at 9 o'clock tomorrow, Wednesday morning.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 19.—Utilizing more space, added sales-help and all extra facilities throughout the store Gimbels is prepared to serve a record-breaking number of Pittsburgh men tomorrow with overcoats at $19.75, the value of which has been conservatively estimated by leaders in the woolen industry at $35 and $40, this year's prices

To make this event totally unparalleled in a generation, Gimbels $6,000,000 cash purchasing power was brought to bear on one of the most celebrated manufacturers in America, whose surplus stock placed him in a distressed cash position, which has been further weakened by a delayed winter.

Contributing woolen mills are said to include such highly regarded and important names as American Woolen Co., Metcalf, James Regan, Harry Shaw, Cyril Johnson, Hall Brothers, Berkshire, Hockanum and Broadbrook.

Fabrics are the kind usually loomed only for the most expensive overcoats, noted for their handsome appearance and long wear, and include boucles, chinchillas, llamas, alpacas, fleeces, shetlands, velours, vicunas, kerseys, tweeds, and Whitney finishes.

"Every coat in this fortunate purchase is new in style and fashion-right," says Gimbels.

"We insisted that the styles as well as the fabrics, colors and tailoring should measure up to the highest expectations of Pittsburgh men."

As a matter of record, Gimbels states that the sale represents a new all-time low price, considering the quality of overcoats to be offered tomorrow at $19.75.

Forward With Optimism!

The year 1931 has been one of the most trying in American history. This store has felt the need for its Service . . . to supply the wants of everyday life, good substantial merchandise at moderate prices . . . was even greater than in normal times. This need we have endeavored to meet. And public response has enabled us to have a satisfactory year.

We look forward to 1932 with optimism. In our merchandising, we will adhere steadfastly to our pledge to "turn" merchandise rapidly at a low margin of profit.

FIREMEN OFFER WOMAN BLOOD

CHARLEROI, Pa., Jan. 19.—Firemen of three companies last night took blood tests for second emergency transfusions in two days, as doctors at the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital waged a losing fight to save the life of Mrs. Jess Cupp, of Fayette City, mother of five children.

Lewis Phillips, Charleroi, gave a quart of blood late Saturday when he was chosen from among 20 fellow members of the Charleroi Volunteer Fire Department.

Mrs. Cupp is suffering from blood poisoning and anemia as the result of an appendix operation five weeks ago. Phillips is a middle-aged Atlantic League baseball star and holder of hitting records.

Last night Belleverron and North Belleverron firemen appeared at the hospital when a second call for transfusion volunteers was made.

HUNT ALCOHOL HIJACKERS

Hijackers who stole a two-and-one-half-ton truck parked near St. Francis Hospital, Forty-fifth street, and abandoned it after removing between 60 and 70 gallons of government alcohol, were being sought by federal prohibition agents and city police today.

The truck was recovered 20 minutes later by Patrolmen Martin Conley and William Harrison at Forty-seventh and Seimert streets. It had been stolen while the driver was making a delivery near the hospital.

SURVEY SHOWS JOB INCREASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Labor Department announced today that industrial employment increased almost 1 per cent in December as compared with November.

Computations by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of reports from 49,481 establishments in 15 major industrial groups showed 4,572,588 workers on payrolls. This was 7 per cent more than in November. Payroll totals increased 3 of 1 per cent.

Although there was an increase in total employment the betterment was confined to three of the 15 groups. A heavy increase was reported by retail establishments due to the holiday trade. Crude petroleum producers and bituminous coal mine operators reported substantial increases.

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 19.—Struck by falling plaster while aiding firemen salvaging furniture from her burning home in West Brownsville, Miss Mary Gorick, 18, was injured late yesterday afternoon. She was found in semi-conscious state. Firemen revived her and administered first aid before sending her to a doctor.

Three Sought as Blast Wrecks Home

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Jan. 19.—(AP)—An explosion and fire wrecked a three-family dwelling here early today. Fear that four persons, dwellers on the third floor, had lost their lives caused police to make an extensive search of the ruins, but they found no trace of bodies.

MUSIC :-: Chicago Symphony Orchestra

Syria Mosque

Program

Passacaglia and Fugue, C Minor	Bach
Symphony No. 7	Beethoven
La Mer	Debussy
Suite, Fire Bird	Strawinsky

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra gave its first of a pair of concerts in Syria Mosque last night. Frederic Stock directed a very imposing program which found great favor with the entire audience, judging from the cordial applause.

Mr. Lissfelt

Mr. Stock has made use of the entire modern orchestra in his remodeling of the Bach Passacaglia and Fugue and aptly enough, especially ingratiating is the introduction of solo violin and cello. But when all is set and played, we may ask whether the result is Bach. If the decorator takes liberties with the original design, perhaps "arrangements" justify themselves, as with Liszt and Busoni too, but the new models are rarely improvements on the original conceptions.

Stock's Beethoven is without flourish; his cadences are brusquely determined, like the rap of a gavel in a court room. He likes a bright tempo; presto is presto and his allegretto is not a sleepy andante.

Of the second half of the program, Strawinsky was nearer the understanding of these players than was Debussy. The iridescence of Debussy's orchestration seems to have escaped last night, while Strawinsky's score took on all the vigor we associate with newer revolts in harmony. A certain Teutonic directness obscured the charm of "La Mer" and strengthened the "Fire Bird" which, even in its vague passages, was resplendent.

FATHER OF SLAIN MAN ACCUSED

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Jan. 19.—(AP)—The dance-girl widow of William Engle, 23, was quoted today as accusing Engle's father, Samuel Engle, 50, of slaying him last week in a jealous rage over their marriage.

District Attorney Robert M. Fortney said the girl told him the father and son had been rivals for her affections and that she and the younger Engle were married shortly before the killing.

Mrs. Engle and Raymond Carl, 16, are being held as accessories after the fact. Authorities say young Engle died from loss of blood and that they could have saved his life by obtaining medical aid.

SAILOR SLAIN WITH HAMMER

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—(INS.)—Bound, gagged, robbed and beaten with a hammer, the body of a Navy veteran found here last night furnished police with another murder mystery today. The victim, Walter Sheppard, 45, retired last year on a pension.

He was found in a house when neighbors complained of the continuous blare of a radio for three days.

Search was started for a woman believed to have been his sweetheart. Police learned that Sheppard became estranged from his wife about six months ago.

The dead man's pockets had been emptied. Neighbors said he was understood to have inherited considerable money from a relative, and that he carried a large sum with him.

BRITON URGES HOUSING PLAN FOR 'HILL'

Sees Better Conditions, Cheaper Rentals Under Plan Used in London

Pittsburgh's Hill district lends itself to the save housing opportunity that in London pays as high as 12 per cent on the investment and provides cheap rents, Claude M. Leigh, British expert, declared here today in addressing the opening meeting of the Allegheny Council on Home Building and Home Ownership in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

The session was being held in conjunction with the Western Pennsylvania Conference on Social Work.

Mr. Leigh, direct landlord to 10,000 tenants and indirectly to 50,000 through sub-leases, is managing director of the Metropolitan Housing Corporation. It is a $2,000,000 concern. Developments in reconditioned properties comprises the chief business though new dwellings are prepared.

Citing how the firm's developments could apply here he said:

"A section of a block or two would be taken in the Hill district. Sixty-five per cent of the existing property would be reconditioned and 40 per cent rebuilt.

In our rows of two-story, two-family dwellings we offer the four-rooms at $20. In six-story tenement apartments, three rooms with bath, rent at $13.10 monthly. We give the tenants advantages of social services here. A matron is in charge of a center. Parents can leave children while they attend shows. Various social classes are held for parents and children.

It was explained that rents and wages here are about double those in London.

MACAULEY RAPS AUTO TAX PLAN

By JAMES R. CONNOR, JR.
International News Service.

DETROIT, Jan. 19.—Attacking the proposed 5 per cent national excise tax on automobiles as discriminatory, Alvan Macauley, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, today labelled the plan as "wrong in principle." Macauley heads the Packard Motor Car Company.

The Treasury Department has proposed to levy a 5 per cent excise tax on automobiles, 3 per cent on trucks, and 2½ per cent on accessories, parts and tires. Macauley said:

"If, as has been said repeatedly by some of the nation's business leaders, the automotive industry can be a self-starter for the return of prosperity, it should not be handicapped with this added burden."

CITY SPAN FUND REQUESTED

More than $200,000 to be used on bridge reconstruction and pipe line projects was asked of Council by the Department of Public Works from a $420,000 improvement bond issue sold several days ago by Controller James P. Kerr.

Of this amount $82,000 was asked for reconstruction of the Schenley Park Bridge over railroad tracks there, and $93,000 for rebuilding a bridge over Panther Hollow. An additional $21,000 was requested for payment of engineering expenses on the two bridge sites.

Managing Engineer James H. Kennon, of the City Bureau of Water, asked $25,000 from the bond issue to continue construction of pipe lines.

KILLER OF CHUM FOUND INSANE

Frank Massaro, 21, alleged to have killed his chum, Ray Fricchone, 18, to keep him from stealing, was sent today to Fairview State Hospital for the Insane by Judge James H. Gray. A lunacy commission found Massaro insane.

The commission was composed of Drs. Edward E. Mayer and C. H. Henninger.

Massaro was held for murder by the Coroner after it developed at an inquest that he had shot Fricchone January 6 in Maxwell street, as the latter was leaving a house into which he had gone on an errand.

NORRIS APPEALS FOR FEDERAL JOB LOAN

Estate Tax to Curb Wealthy, Assure U. S. Prosperity, Urged in Harrisburg Talk

Universal Service.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19. — Senator George W. Norris, Nebraskan insurgent, last night made an impassioned plea for a new deal all around to relieve the present plight of the jobless and to halt centralization of wealth and power to preclude a recurrence of the economic crisis.

Norris advocated two remedies, each supplemental to the other. They were:

1—A federal bond issue to relieve the present situation.

2—A progressive estate tax to end the power of moneyed men "to tell us across the gulf of eternity what to do with their money after they are dead."

The gray-haired insurgent's address was cheered repeatedly by an audience of agriculturists attending Pennsylvania's annual farm products show. He derided the attempts of "big business" to chart the nation's course in collaboration with political machines.

A scathing arraignment of foreign bond flotation in country banks of the United States as a chief cause of the depression was a feature of Norris' address.

Norris For Pinchot, or Roosevelt Over Hoover

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, last night named Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, as his fourth choice as a presidential candidate "satisfactory" to progressive Republicans and "the rank and file of the people." Roosevelt, as the Democratic nominee, he added, would be "much preferred to President Hoover."

Here as the guest of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, the Nebraskan, in an interview, named his host, Senator Johnson, of California, and Senator Borah, of Idaho, as the three candidates most acceptable to the Progressives.

In event of the organization of a third party, Norris said Pinchot would make a "very satisfactory candidate."

Y. W. C. A. Raises $14,000 on Budget

More than $14,000 has been raised toward the $133,000 1932 budget campaign of the Young Women's Christian Association, it was announced today, following a luncheon meeting of workers at the Central Branch, Chatham street. Miss Isabella Kennedy, of the Federation of Social Agencies, was the speaker. Mrs. W. J. Gilmore presided.

County Postoffice Rule Exempts Heads

Elected county officials will not be expected to submit confidential letters, unsealed, to the newly established county postoffice for mailing, according to James O. Corbett, in temporary charge of the postoffice.

The innovation was one of the ideas of the new Board of County Commissioners in seeking to effect economy in the expense of postage and efficiency in the sealing of large batches of mail.

R. N. Conwell, an engineer of the Public Service Electric and Gas Company, Newark, will speak before the Westinghouse Club, Wilkinsburg, tonight, on "What Utilities Expect from Manufacturers in the Way of Engineering Service." Conwell is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Reckless Autoists Witness Parade Of Cripples

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—There was a parade of cripples in Chicago yesterday for 22 men charged with reckless automobile driving or driving while intoxicated.

The first to pass in review was a legless little girl, wheeled before the 22 as they stood in silence in a room of a school for crippled children.

Next came a child hopping on crutches, with both legs in braces, followed by a tiny boy hobbling along on a wooden leg.

The parade was part of Judge Frank M. Padden's campaign to educate motorists to be careful.

Reckless Autoists Witness Parade Of Cripples

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—There was a parade of cripples in Chicago yesterday for 22 men charged with reckless automobile driving or driving while intoxicated.

The first to pass in review was a legless little girl, wheeled before the 22 as they stood in silence in a room of a school for crippled children.

Next came a child hopping on crutches, with both legs in braces, followed by a tiny boy hobbling along on a wooden leg.

The parade was part of Judge Frank M. Padden's campaign to educate motorists to be careful.

Erie, Pa.—"I had read about Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription and decided to get it for my daughter who was growing into womanhood, she couldn't rest at night, everything bothered her, had no appetite, lost much weight and her nerves were almost shattered," said Miss Mary Rehberg of 1121 E. 19th St. "She is on her second bottle now. Her teacher noticed the big improvement in her and I certainly am thankful that I selected the 'Favorite Prescription.' We have faith in Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription." Sold by druggists.

ELECTRA AT HOME -:- Long Play Begins Two Weeks in Nixon -:- AMUSEMENTS -:- News and Notes About Stage and Screen

In O'Neill's Tragic Trilogy New England Conscience Works Its Doom

By GEORGE SEIBEL

For the second time within three months I sat through the 14 scenes of Eugene O'Neill's trilogy, "Mourning Becomes Electra," and the first impression of its depth and height was deepened and heightened. And some things stand out clearer than at first. Here is Sophocles seen through the eyes of Hawthorne. Electra is the New England conscience, taking the place of the Greek Fates. And it is a play, viewing the three plays as one, so admirably built from climax to climax that the only parallel is to be found in the architecture of the Parthenon.

George Seibel

It has been said too often to require repetition that O'Neill has taken the classic story of the house of Atreus and modernized it, from the infidelity of Clytemnestra and the murder of Agamemnon to the madness of Orestes and the desolate despair of his sister Electra. It's all in Lempriere, where any high school lad or lass can read it plain. It is not a pleasant story—not a Sunday school story—not a blithe romance with a chime of wedding bells at the conclusion.

Instead it is a black procession of guilt and horror, sin and shame, blood and crime—piled one upon another, intertwined like serpents, dripping poison and agony.

Such is "Mourning Becomes Electra" brought to the Nixon Theater last night by the Theater Guild.

COMPARING THE CASTS

The cast of the New York production was so memorable that it would be difficult to surpass it. Alice Brady and Alla Nazimova played the two principal roles—Electra and Clytemnestra, under their modern names of Lavinia and Christine. Judith Anderson plays Alice Brady's part in this production, and Florence Reed that of Nazimova. It must be said that they do not fall below the standard of the other pair. If in some spots they do not reach it, in other points they top it, so that the average is even. Here are two of the finest and most sustained performances by women seen here in years. Only the Elizabeth of Lynn Fontanne ranks with them.

The important men are also equal to the Broadway cast. Crane Wilbur as the lover of Christine, Thurston Hall as her husband, Walter Abel as Lavinia's brother—are all of them deeply moving and convincing. Seth Arnold as a sort of comic chorus, the old family servant, is a humorous commentary upon the ossified New England conscience. George W. Callahan furnishes two delicious types of mirthful byplay.

YES, THERE IS COMEDY

There is comedy, but it is comedy like the drunken Porter in "Macbeth" or the Grave-Diggers in "Hamlet"—comedy that is like the grin of skulls.

From 5:30 to 11:30 the great audience sat in the spell of this awesome tragedy. O'Neill has never built his scenes better—he has never lent his dialogue such concentrated vitality — he has never given his characters more accurate and inevitable motivation. Delving into the very deepest abysses of the human soul, he has created a masterpiece of abnormal psychology — a terrible group of guilt and punishment like the shrieking horror of the Laocoon which is in the Vatican Museum. To talk a lot about this classic colossus is to cheapen it.

Since the "Oedipus" of Sophocles there have been four great tragedies — "Hamlet," "Lear," "Macbeth" and "Othello." O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra" is the sixth.

Barrymores Will Play Together

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19.

This gossipy town wondered why R. K. O. postponed a picture and allowed John Barrymore to remain at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to play the baron in "Grand Hotel."

Now it's out. What really happened was David Selznick made a clever swap with M. G. M. He agreed to put on "State's Attorney" if they would lend him Lionel Barrymore for a later picture.

With his deal signed, sealed and delivered, David is busy looking for a story in which he can co-star the famous brothers. By that time, they will be well established as screen associates. M. G. M. teamed them first in "Arsene Lupin," and now both are to be seen in "Grand Hotel."

Lionel Barrymore

For all that she was a protegee of Charley Chaplin, Myrna Kennedy has found it difficult to get screen jobs in Hollywood. She's to go to work soon, however, as leading woman in a Tom Keene western called "Ghost City." Myrna and James Hall still team together off-screen. For the present, he is in the East making personal appearances.

GOSSIP

A sight I never expected to see was snow on Hollywood boulevard. But there it was, and ever since the town's been talking about little else. Ralph Wheelright says January 14 will go down in history as the day Greta Garbo started "Grand Hotel" and it snowed in Hollywood. . . . Dick Arlen has just come home from New York, yearning for sunny California. For all of that he discarded the raccoon coat, derby hat, spats and cane that he acquired in New York. . . . The Hollywood hills were strangely white. Up at Ann Harding's home there was four inches of snow. Ann says she was out at 6 a. m. making a snow-man for her small daughter. The mountains over Pasadena way were beautiful.

Ann Harding

Ellsworth Vines, national singles champion, plays tennis every Sunday at Cedric Gibbon's house . . . Jimmy Durante reports Prof. Einstein accompanied him on the violin when he was playing the piano at Palm Springs. But not for long. "He's a highbrow," says Jimmy, "plays all those overchures." Word reaeches here that Buddy Rogers is mighty homesick for Hollywood. . . . The Paramount eastern studio will be closed, I understand, when Claudette Colbert finishes "Sensation." Janet Gaynor is in Rome, but is due back the middle of next month. Herbert Brenon is building a house at Palm Springs—building it himself, too. . . . And without supervisor. . . . Warner Brothers will make 18 short subjects of S. S. Van Dine mystery stories. . . . And there's a fellow in the Paramount plaster shop named P. W. Potter.

Drama!

Walter Abel and Florence Reed in an episode in Eugene O'Neill's trilogy, "Mourning Becomes Electra," now in Nixon.

Plays, Players and By-Plays

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Experience Unnecessary," which was to have been the January play of the Professional Players in the Alvin, has been postponed until Monday, February 8. This will mean two P. P. sub plays in the day-longer month, as Ethel Barrymore, in "The School for Scandal," dated for February 22, also is a subscriptioner. Mgr. Geo. Young, of the Alv., which has been saving money on electric lights for a coupla weeks, says current sellers can cheer up, for he is going to have his share of shows soon. Fred Stone's new musical frolic, "Smiling Faces," Feb. 15, is one of them.

Small Timer says its funny how a woman'll make a fool of herself over a man that won't let her make a fool of him.

Bill Bryant, the Ohio River showboat man, who has been amusing Chi, moves into the Golden Theater, New York, tomorrow night with "Ten Nights In a Barroom" . . . Hardie Albright, boy from hereabouts and a drama grad of Tech, on Sattidy night finished up an engagement in "Berkeley Square" in the Pasadena (Calif.) Community Playhouse, from which Irving Pichel, another local product, moved into the movies and national success. Albright also has appeared in a number of pix last year . . . Saturday, Fedurary 13, Katharine Cornell will end her New York run in "The Barrets of Wimplole Street," so she can take the play on the road before opening in her next one, "Alien Corn" . . . When Maude Adams and Otis Skinner come to the Nixon the first week in February in "The Merchant of Venice," the engagement will be for five nights only, Monday night being blank . . . Ina Claire is Europe-bound on a holiday and play-going trip, the latter slant pertaining to possible movie material for Miss Claire . . . Warner Brothers have entered the dramatic stock field by establishing companies in Montclair, N. J., and Oklahoma City, Okla.

Grim Russian Realism Filmed

By MILDRED FILLMORE

That somber novel of the Russian Dostoievsky, "The Brothers Karamazov," has been turned into a very impressive film, which is on view at the German Cinema, in Liberty street. It is far different from any American film, with its unrelieved, stark realism and terrific acting. There is not a laugh in it—nor a moment when the players lose the illusion. One of the greatest of German actors, Max Pohl, has an important part—that of old Karamazov. But the finest playing is done by Fritz Kortner as Dmitri and Anna Sten as Gruschenka. Everything about this picture is done with relentless truth, and the elaboration of the minor details is worthy of highest praise. There are character types appearing for only a second that have been selected with as much care as the stars. Even the climatic atmosphere, bleak trees and gray clouds, are part of the artistic unity. See this picture if you want great acting—but there are no laughs in it.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough due to a cold. It takes but a moment to mix, costs little, and saves money, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest medicinal agents for severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Things I Never Noodle Now

(And have forgotten already!)

That in New York State, with a pop. of 11 million, there are 5,637,552 savings bank accounts. (One for every two pipples!)

That a hot bath killed a champion—John L. Sullivan.

That, according to law, a person 16 years of age or under is a child—and a person under 21 is an infant. (Such a system!)

That the Hudson River, even the part that touches the Jersey shore, is owned by the State of New York.

That one motor car firm has a model done in any color that won't suffer from the elements. It is made from herring.

That Napoleon, who never slept more than three or four hours when he reigned, slept 36 hours after his first defeat at Aspern.

That during these days an average of 5,500 watches and bits of jewelry are hocked in the 3-ball shops daily.

That Washington was disliked for his profanity, Jefferson for "displaying" his education and "Teddy" for his contempt of the idle rich, as my favorite editor, Wm. Allen White, of Emporia, will tell you.

That when bees are happy—they waltz! (Bzzzzzz!)

That Park Avenuers often ride only 50c worth in a taxi, and offer more nickel tips than you, you, you or you!

That Gen. Sir David Campbell, a Cavalry officer of the British Army, has a unique distinction. He was the only Britisher wounded by an enemy lance during the War.

That the reason why an order was issued to the British not to boil tea in their "tin-hats" was that the boiling aqua magnetized the steel helmets and made them no longer bullet-proof.

That there is one house in the Bronx 4 blocks square.

That the guy who accompanied Paul Revere on his famous ride was named John Drew, and John never gets a break in print.

That the great stylist, Oscar Wilde, had plenty of trouble with "will" and "shall," and had his pals check on them before using.

That Uncle Sam still tries to nab exploiters of the Dempsey-Tunney films.

That sailors have to buy their uniforms after the first one.

That in the old days you had to get permission from the Bishop before you could become a hermit. (Via religious services!)

That bleached hair, after growing in again, always comes in two shades darker than it was originally.

Mothers Have Good Reasons To Insist on Chaperones

Are chaperones "out" in this day of bachelor gals and high powered joy rides? Just something to be classed with the fabled dodo and the stuffed owl on grandma's what not?

And can a little girl go off on a week end with the best boy friend and two other couples, and come home as safe and sound as if she'd spent her time at a ladies' sewing circle?

Judy thinks they are and that she can, which she is up with rage because mamma's dear quaint conventional mamma who is of course way behind the times says No to her plan for a perfectly innocent little jaunt to the beach.

"The nerve," she sniffs tearfully. It's not as if she didn't trust me her own daughter. Or Bob! I think it's awful!"

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I am writing this to you because I'm mad, and because I think you are modern enough to understand and want it is all about, and maybe help me to make my mother see how things are in this modern age.

"I am 20 and I have been working for three years, so you see I know my way around pretty well. I am going with an awfully nice young man and I have a lot of nice friends.

"Well, here's the problem. Bob my friend has a cottage at the beach, and he and I and two other couples want to go there for a week-end. We have all gone for week-ends a number of times, but mamma always went along. That was during the summer.

MOTHER OBJECTS

"Now some of us have got the idea that it would be fun to go now, because we've never been there this time of year, and we thought it might be a lark. It is all perfectly innocent. We all like the outdoors and go in for sports both winter and summer.

"We all thought it was all set. And then mamma wanted to know who was going to 'chaperone' us. I told her that we would chaperone ourselves, and she went right up in the air.

"She is the sweetest mother in the world, but she is terribly old-fashioned. She has never outgrown her own girlhood days, when a girl couldn't step out of the door without being watched, and she just can't understand how things are now.

"You see, I am not wild or anything like that. But I don't like to be herded around if you get what I mean.

"We had quite an argument about it, but she wouldn't give in. I think it's awful. It's just as if she didn't trust me, her own daughter. Or Bob! And I know I would be safe anywhere with him. He has proved himself to be strictly fine.

"Can't you help me? I am so disgusted! "JUDY."

CHAPERONES BEST

Will I help you? If I can, honey—but not to change Mother. Because after all, Mother is right.

No, I don't mean that you would any of you actually come to any harm. You might be able to go there and come home perfectly safe. But here's what you have to buck up against, little girl.

Would the world believe that you did? Or would it look at you with a tom-cat leer and say "Oh yeah? Tell it to Sweeney?" The chances are that it wouldn't believe you.

And that's why we have chaperones. Even in Mother's day, chaperones weren't just to watch youngsters, they were to protect them—to protect them from suspicion and wagging tongues and ugly minds. So nice carefully-brought-up gals still hang onto them, Judy. They hang onto them because they know that, after all, they're a mighty good bet for a youngster who wants to get along.

So go on your trip if you want to, but take some jolly older person along to keep the boogers away.

Many persons have magnificent ideas of all the good they would do in the world if they only had the great means it would require to do them.

At the same time they do not trouble to do the many little things that can also make the world happier.

It is not only doing big things in a big way that helps mankind, but also doing little things in a big way.

It is within the means of everyone to be kind, considerate, honest and fair.

If each of us was thoughtful in these what a fine world this would be.

The infliction of a small unkindness can cause more unhappiness than the lack of being able to confer a great favor.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Humiliated By Doctor

Not by word or look did I protest Dr. Quigley's ruling that I was to go to bed but, as I walked away with Lillian, who was obeying his injunction to take me away, I felt that my cup of humiliation was filled to the brim.

"No nurse can do justice to the care of a child-patient with a nervous mother on her hands," the words rang in my ears like the insistent clanging of fire bells.

"Oh! Lillian," I said despairingly as we came back into my room and saw the last typed pages of the third act of my play scattered in confusion as we had left it when Katie had summoned us to the baby, "think what this has cost me."

"What do you mean, cost you?" Lillian's tone was rougher than I had heard it in many a day, and goaded me into impassioned speech.

"Are you blind? Can't you see?" I cried. "This miserable play has cost me my right to be with my baby when she is ill unto death. If I had not been so exhausted by this night's work in order to be ready when Philip Veritzen cracks the whip tomorrow, that doctor never would have dared to send me to bed as if I were a neurotic."

If Lillian had any inclination to comment that I was exactly what I had said, she carefully repressed it.

"Lie down there," she commanded, as if I had not spoken, and turned down the covers of my bed as she did so.

"I'll run you a bath," and after you have taken that and a shower, I'll tuck you into bed. Take my advice and lock the two Spection Sisters—Intro and Retro—into their cells until you wake up. And let me tell you something. Your baby is not "ill unto death." I grant you that a convulsion isn't anything to monkey with—it's probably the most terrifying thing a child can stage. But unless there is an accompaniment of some deadly illness, and both your nurse and your doctor agree that there is not, you have no reason for the desperate fear which is hanging over you. I've seen a number of them myself, and I know."

Lillian was through the door as she finished and, looking after her, a rush of memory came to me, a memory of the time in my early married life when the aversion I had cherished for Lillian Underwood had been first lessened by a glimpse of the real woman under her bizarre mask.

Again I saw the evening party in our New York apartment, with Lillian the gayest of us all, when a frightened housemaid ran in from the apartment across the hall bearing in her arms a baby in the throes of a convulsion. I remember it as vividly as if it were yesterday. Lillian's prompt resourcefulness as she took the baby from the frightened girl's arms, impressed us into her service and brought the child back to life by the time a physician arrived. It had been my first knowledge of her real self and the respect born upon that night, which has grown into an affection only surpassed by the love I give to my husband, my children and my father. She had never failed me in all the years of our friendship. She was not failing me now, but there came to me in a blinding flash the realization that I was failing her. She it was who had insisted that I finish this work for Philip Veritzen in the record-breaking time necessary for the accomplishment of the work for which he had asked.

My outburst about my night's work must have been like a slap in the face to her.

Was I all wrong? Was this primitive, overmastering desire to care for my baby in illness of a piece with the action of the ignorant mother, who snatches her baby from a physician's arms and runs away from the only help which can save it? My reason and common sense said "yes," but something deep within cried out against my reason and clamored fiercely that I had no right to so exhaust myself by outside work—even so important and engrossing a thing as my play—that I was unequal to the task of caring for my sick child.

One thing was clear before me, however. Because I had failed to measure up to the physician's standard of efficiency and had failed my baby—the verdict of my overstrained nerves was no reason why I should wound Lillian and Katherine as well. They had stood loyally by me through this strenuous night, giving every ounce that was in them in order that I might finish this piece of work for Philip Veritzen which meant so much to my literary future. There was no possibility of my being permitted to care for my baby until I rested. There was but one course—decent, self-respecting course—open to me. I must pull myself together, yield docilely to Lillian's loving care and, above all, remove from Lillian's consciousness the poison dart of ingratitude which I had just thrust into it.

Household Hints

Stale vegetables can be freshened by soaking in cold water to which the juice of a lemon has been added.

If steak is feared to be tough, rub it over with a cut lemon, then brush over with olive oil 10 minutes before cooking. It will then be succulent and tender.

If salt is not added till potatoes are nearly cooked it will help to make them dry and floury. To whiten potatoes, especially old ones, a tablespoonful of vinegar should be added just before they are cooked.

The Lady on the Right

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a couple enter a theater and are asked by the usherette where they wish to be seated, whose place is it to tell her, the man's or the girl's?

2. Is it not nice to thank her when she shows you a seat that exactly satisfies you?

3. When a couple are walking, not on a sidewalk, but, for instance, walking in to dinner, which side should the man take? This bothered me for some time, as I see some men on the right, and some on the left, and surely there is a set rule for this.

4. How can one eat Chinese noodles gracefully? I think there is nothing quite so hard to handle. MISS S.

1. The man's. Every mother's daughter of us likes the man who shows that he is an accustomed host, who masterfully takes in hand just such a situation as this, and doesn't feebly leave it to the girl with him to take the initiative.

2. Yes. A thank-you for such a courtesy should be as inevitable as the sunshine.

3. "The lady on the right of the gentleman" is the traditional rule. And what a valuable one it is for a man to remember! I wish that more men would remember it, for it is so easy, and so important.

4. We must do the best that we can with the fork.

Answering Bread and Butter Notes

No. This letter completes the cycle of invitation, visit and thank-you-for-your-hospitality.

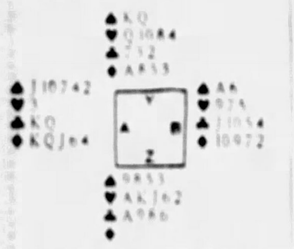
Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Ruffing Losers Before Pulling Trumps

Old card players often speak of "ruffing" meaning thereby trumping. The expression dates back of Whist to the preceding game of Ruff. The hand below illustrates the second sort of holdings where trumps should not be pulled at once.



Contracting went Z 1-Heart, A, 1-Spade, Y 2-Hearts, B Pass, Z 3-Hearts, A 4-Diamonds, Y 4-Hearts. A's opening lead was his K of diamonds. The trick was won by dummy's A, but Z had a little problem concerning which discard should be made from his own hand. Would you discard a spade or a club? Some player moved impatiently as Z pondered, the declarer felt disturbed, muttered "I dunno," and let go his lowest spade. As a matter of fact it made no difference what Z discarded, but his opponent's discourtesy caused the declarer to hurry his consideration of what the joint 26 cards required him to do, and cost him game. Z took three rounds of trumps, then he led a spade, which B won. The return lead of a diamond took out Z's fourth trump. He won a trick with dummy's top spade, returned to his own hand with a club lead, winning the trick with his A and returning his last spade for dummy to ruff with its last trump. Z had lost one spade trick. He had left in his hand three losing clubs and one good trump, putting him down one trick on his contract.

The hand should have been played as follows: After winning the opening lead with dummy's A of diamonds, the K of spades should have been returned. No matter what B led after having won the trick with his A, Z could win the trick and lead a spade, which dummy would win.

When B won with his A of spades, suppose that he led a diamond to ruff Z. The latter would win the trick and have dummy win a trick with its last spade. A return lead of clubs would put Z in lead with his A, he would lay down his last spade and ruff high in dummy, insuring against losing the trick to an overruff by B. If B discarded a club it might add one trick to the declarer's score. B would have to let go a diamond. A return of a club by dummy would be won by A, which would be the second trick for his side. A could not lead a spade without allowing Y to discard his last losing club, while Z ruffed, insuring five-odd. Whether A led back a trump or a diamond would not matter, Z would win the trick, and he would have to surrender one club trick to the defenders (A-B) giving Y-Z four odd. Had Z not led trumps after the opening lead of diamonds, nothing that his adversaries could have done could have defeated his contract.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Child's Six-Year Molars Are Often Neglected

When the first permanent teeth are due to appear in the mouth, it is the six year molar that comes first. This tooth is often neglected. The negligence is unintentional, of course, but very often great harm results from it.

Dr. Copeland

Since this tooth is the first of the permanent ones, the parents are likely to regard it as another of the temporary set, and too many children at this age are not taught the importance of properly cleaning the mouth and teeth. Due to such carelessness, this tooth is usually diseased before the child is taken to a dentist.

Nature intended the first of the big teeth, the molars, to fit together in such a way that when the teeth are closed they hold the lower jaw firmly in place. That is why there are two molar teeth on each side of both the upper and lower jaws. As a result of this perfect arrangement, too, you may grind and crush your food when it is chewed.

If one of these teeth is lost, the whole side of the mouth may be thrown out of line. That is what results from losing the temporary teeth too soon and neglecting the early permanent teeth.

The molars differ from the other teeth in that they require a little extra care. The other permanent teeth have more time to develop before they come through the gum. Dental care is of the greatest possible value if begun before the permanent teeth appear. It takes time for the grooves of the teeth to harden completely, and they present ideal places for food to lodge and for decay to take place.

It may be smaller than a pinpoint, but any cavity is sufficiently large for food to enter and for germs to thrive. When once a cavity breaks through the enamel of a tooth it will gradually get larger. More and more enamel is broken down by the action of acid foods, as well as by the germs.

Too many school children are suffering from dental decay. It is important that all children visit the dentist periodically for a careful examination of the teeth. This care is just as important for the child with the temporary teeth as it is for the child with permanent teeth.

I want to emphasize the importance of caring for the six-year molars. Of all the teeth, these are most likely to be defective. It is estimated that more than 60 per cent of all children in the United States below the age of 14 years have one or more defective first molars.

If this condition is neglected it will lead to further infection, often to deep-rooted abscesses. When this occurs, it is too late to go to a dentist for repair. He must then remove the tooth.

"Whistle, girls . . . it makes lovely, tempting lips"

JULIA FOSTER picks up a new exercise that moulds the mouth into youthful lines

WHISTLE TWO MINUTES A DAY.....
Wait until you hear this one. Wait till some one catches you at it around the house. They'll think you've turned musical. But you and I will know it's just another stunt—and a mighty good one, too, for keeping lovely lips kissable. Whistle! Whether or not you can make a noise, pucker up your lips and try to whistle at least two minutes—and preferably five—every single day. An expert whose word is law in American beauty culture told me this can do more to chase away mouth lines and keep the lips up-standing than any other exercise she knows. So here we go . . . a whistling chorus!

THOSE UNSIGHTLY ELBOWS.....
Question—What is one to do about unsightly elbows, when evening dress is in order? Answer—Dip pads of cotton in a Palmolive Soap lather, and rest each elbow on these pads for as many moments as you can spare. You'll be enchanted with the smooth whiteness of your elbows after that. (It's the olive oil, in the soap, I suspect, that makes this so effective a treatment.)

GOING PLACES AND DOING THINGS.....
Have you ever used Palmolive in the bath? When you're all tired out and life seems too wearisome, melt up a bar of Palmolive, pour the rich liquid of olive and palm oils into a tub of warm water, step in and relax. Let the rich oils caress your skin, and soften it. Then massage your whole body with the lather from another cake of Palmolive Soap. After the bath, dusting powder. In no time at all, tired toes will feel like dancing, you'll feel like putting on your loveliest frock, going places, doing things.

* * *

*Julia Foster is employed by Palmolive to report last-minute beauty news. She visits hundreds of beauty salons, from month to month. She talks with experts. She attends beauty conventions; visits smart restaurants, clubs, theatres. She reports it to you in these news flashes.

BEWARE HARSH WASHCLOTHS.....
If you prefer a washcloth for washing the face, be sure you use a very soft cloth. The rough, thick, hard-rubbing cloths some women use are much too hard on delicate skin tissue. Work Palmolive lather gently into face and throat, then rinse it off with warm water. Palmolive Soap is recommended by experts, you know. Just try it once. That's all I ask.

Beauty in a test-tube

OLIVE oil for the complexion! Always known to keep skin soft, supple, youthful. In thousands of years nothing has ever been found to surpass this beauty secret of the ancients.

But can you get enough olive oil in soap? How much, actually, goes into Palmolive? There is the exact amount—in that test tube at the right. The exact amount used in every cake of Palmolive. To this generous olive oil content can be directly traced the great benefits of Palmolive Soap to the complexion.

Do you know what is in the soap you are putting on your face? Palmolive tells you. Palmolive is the only large-selling soap made of vegetable oils exclusively—the only one using olive oil as a base. Other Palmolive ingredients are simply oils from palm trees necessary to produce a richer, creamier, more workable lather than possible with olive oil alone.

Knowing the value of a liberal amount of olive oil in soap, and knowing Palmolive to contain olive oil in its most modern, most practical form, more than 20,000 of the world's leading beauty experts have for years urged women to use Palmolive Soap as the finest possible safeguard for lovely skin.

PITTSBURGHERS SUED BY BANK

A number of Pittsburgh men alleged stockholders in the Vegetable Oil and Products Company, a Delaware corporation operating in Los Angeles, were named defendants in five suits filed yesterday in Federal Court by the Farmers and Merchants National Bank of Los Angeles, which seeks to recover $55,708.84 on money alleged to have been borrowed from the bank by the corporation.

The statements of claim aver that under the California code stockholders are liable in proportion to pro rata shares of stock held. In a suit against Edward G. Mueller the bank seeks to recover $41,238.55; and the other suits seek $3,747.79 from R. W. Mueller; $3,579.66 from J. C. Trees, and $3,546.83 from Joseph H. Holmes, Claude F. Pugh, Carroll F. Purdy, James C. Chaplin, III, and others, who formerly traded under the partnership of J. H. Holmes & Co., according to the statement.

Another suit seeking to recover $3,546.01 was against Joseph H. Holmes, Carroll F. Purdy and others, trading under the same alleged partnership.

Mine Congress Holds Meet Here Jan. 20

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—In preparation for its annual coal convention at Cincinnati, May 2 to May 7, the manufacturers division of the American Mining Congress, announced today that a district meeting would be held in Pitsburgh, January 20, for coal operators of Pennsylvania and Northern West Virginia.

PINCHOT VETOES HOSPITAL AID

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Gov. Pinchot today vetoed the McKay bill appropriating $2,000,000 to state-aided hospitals.

He said this measure, passed by the special session of the Legislature called to consider unemployment relief, could not be approved because the Legislature failed to provide revenue for the appropriation and because the basis of distribution "has no relation to the requirements of the individual hospitals."

Gov. Pinchot indicated in a letter yesterday to Horatio G. Lloyd, administrator of the Philadelphia unemployment relief fund, that he will not call another extraordinary session of the Legislature.

U. S. AID URGED ON WELFARE

There always will be depressions, some short and some long, and anyone who says they have a plan for permanent cure is crazy, Dr. William M. Leiserson, professor of economics at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, O., declared in a luncheon address today in the Fort Pitt Hotel. He addressed more than 500 persons attending the regional meeting of the Pennsylvania Conference on Social Welfare.

For immediate relief, Dr. Leiserson declared that the federal government will have to come to the aid of the municipalities and communities to provide for the families facing starvation. He said:

"I advocate and believe the government eventually will have to supplement city and municipality relief. The taxpayer is at the end of his rope."

A score of round table conferences and meetings were held by various branches of the state organization. Tonight there will be a joint banquet by the social welfare group and the Pennsylvania State Tuberculosis Society, marking the close of the welfare group meetings and the opening of a one-day tuberculosis conference.

Poe Manuscript Safe at Drexel

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—(INS)—Thrice rescued from rubbish heaps and fire, "Murders in the Rue Morgue," Edgar Allan Poe's old manuscript, was ensconced today in a place of honor at Drexel Institute on the one hundred and twenty-third anniversary of the noted poet's birth.

PRINCESS' GEMS DOWER LOST

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The fortune in jewels with which the Infanta Eulalia, daughter of the once Queen of Spain, had intended to finance the marriage of her grandsons to the daughters of former King Alfonso are missing, it was learned today.

A trunk supposed to contain the gems was sent to her from Spain several days ago, but when she opened it she found only a heap of shawls and several old umbrellas. The jewels, which she had sent to Madrid from Paris when the Germans were advancing on the city during the war, were gone.

BUCHANAN HEIR HOPES DIM

SEATTLE, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A national investigation by the Associated Press has failed to reveal legal records of an immense "estate" supposed to be distributed in the near future to heirs of the late President James Buchanan.

More than 1,000 persons have been notified that they are heirs and that a distribution soon will be made of the accumulated returns from the investments of the Buchanan family.

Questioning of "heirs" generally brought evasive answers. Several have referred questioning persons to a long list of prominent persons, headed by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York. Gov. Roosevelt says the "estate" is "purely a hoax."

At Lancaster, Pa., home of President Buchanan, no one could offer any information on the "estates." Several years ago similar rumors were reported at Pittsburgh and Oil City, Pa., and investigation failed to disclose a Buchanan trust or estate.

MINE LEADERS TELL OF ATTACK

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Joe Weber and Bill Duncan, National Miners' Union organizers missing since last Friday, came to Knoxville from Appalachia, Va., today and related a story of being arrested at Cumberland Gap, Tenn., taken by Harlan County officers to Lynch, Ky., and clubbed into insensibility.

Weber, a slender, light-haired man, who said he had been organizer for the National Miners Union at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., displayed black and blue stripes across his back and a gash in his neck.

Best Remedy Is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

To Mothers whose children won't eat

NATURE knows best. Never coax a child to eat! Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite. When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, don't give small children a constipating cathartic that drains the system. California fig syrup is all the "medicine" they require.

The Child's Appetite Will Always Respond

Specialists will tell you that a sluggish appetite almost always means the child has a sluggish colon. Correct this condition called stasis, and see how quickly a restless, drooping boy or girl begins to eat—and gain! The only "medicine" such children seem to need is pure, unadulterated fig syrup.

Children who get fig syrup now and then soon have the appetite and energy of young animals. They keep well and avoid colds and sluggish spells.

Nature never made a finer laxative for children; and they all love the wholesome, fruity flavor of the real California fig syrup. It's purely vegetable but every druggist has it all bottled, with directions. Begin with it at once. The very next day, your child will be eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the fig syrup a few days and see amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight, and spirits.

A single IF

The promises made by the bottlers of California Fig Syrup are true, and it will do the same for you, if it's genuine CALIFORNIA Fig Syrup. Don't accept substitutes.

MOTHER FACES 3D DEATH TRIAL

LEWISBURG, W. Va., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Minnie Stull, 31-year-old Princeton widow, for the third time faced a jury today, charged with the murder of her nine-year-old stepson.

Once sentenced to life imprisonment for the death of Mickey Stull, who died after several immersions in a tub of boiling water, Mrs. Stull was granted a new trial and a change of venue from Mercer County to Greenbrier County. The jury failed to agree at the second trial here in December.

The State based its charge of first degree murder upon contentions that the widow repeatedly pushed her stepson into the hot water and that there was evidence he was twice poisoned before that time. The State cited an insurance policy on the boy's life as a motive.

The defense contended the boy fell back into the tub after he was rescued.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Events

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Just as I had expected of conservative Pittsburgh society, folks arriving at the Nixon yesterday afternoon at 5:30 for the opening curtain of "Mourning Becomes Electra" wore smart street costumes or in the case of a few of the youngest set afternoon dresses.

But although the audience was simply gowned in keeping with the austerity of the play many looks looked decidedly smart.

One of the new pancake berets made of rose felt was worn jauntily by Mrs. William Larimer Mellon, Jr., who arrived with Mr. Mellon. She chose a dress of black velvet having elbow length sleeves and a bolero effect.

* * *

Mrs. Kal Magee Scaife chose a simple gown of black crepe with a collar and cuffs of fine white lace. Her chapeau of black felt had as its only trimming a loop of white feathers.

Style Keynote

Arriving with the Herbert A. Mays were Louise Reed and Richard King Mellon. Others I noticed in the audience throngs were Mrs. James Verner Scaife and Frances Forsyth.

During intermission I had a glimpse of Evelyn Evans interesting costume. Over a skirt of flared black satin she wore a rose satin tunic suggestive of Russian influence. Kolinsky banded the elbow-length sleeves.

Rita Baumfrager, one of the debs of the year, chose a more formal costume of forget-me-not blue velvet having a yoke and brief sleeves of cream lace. And she had a Juliette cap of the velvet with a twisted band of the same material as the only trimming.

* * *

Mrs. Theodore F. Smith I had a glimpse of, and Lucile Todd another debutante wearing a two-tone frock with the novel basque of grosgrain satin and the skirt of black. A Juliet cap of black velvet completed her costume.

Others of the smart set there included Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mrs. Charles Flavius Kirkpatrick, red crepe; Mrs. John Berdan and Mrs. John S. Ewart.

From New Kensington came Mrs. Clifton I. Childs, Mrs. Percy Danner and Mrs. Donald Bakewell. Mrs. Bakewell chose a black crepe frock and a small fingertip jacket of black American broadtail.

Frances Fitzgerald wore a Persian green crepe costume. Genevieve Bell a smart ashes of rose crepe dress with a felt hat and a crepe pocketbook in the same shade. Her coat was made of beige galapun.

Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, the Joseph M. Scribners, the H. C. Bughmans, Mrs. Elmer Diebold, Mrs. B. F. Jones III and Mrs. James Edward Lewis were also there.

Mrs. Dorwin Donnelly wore an interesting gown of black chiffon having the long flowing sleeves embroidered in turquoise blue wool and beaded beads below the elbow in blue.

Style Interest

Mrs. T. Howe Nimick I saw in the foyer in black velvet accented with white and a black turban having a vertical white feather and Juliet Hillman. Mrs. William S. McKinney was with Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacobs, whom I noticed as she arrived. Mrs. Jacobs wore a distinctive black felt turban having two deep Spanish tie quills, placed perpendicularly, as the only trimming. With her coat of Persian lamb she carried a small muff of the same fur and her gown was of Spanish tie crepe.

Mrs. Harvey Childs III I saw chatting with Helen Leovy, who wore a crepe afternoon dress in one of the new grayish blue shades. The long flaring sleeves had deep cuffs of black crepe and the sash was lined in black.

Mrs. John W. Walton wore black crepe and Madeleine Alexander, black crepe and a black felt turban with a white quill. Caroline Mitchell, one of the debs, wore poinsettia red velvet with a matching turban and a black carracul coat.

Mrs. George Harwood looked distinctive in black crepe. Others there were Mrs. Wallace Hurtle Rowe, Jr., Mrs. G. Hatton Scherer, Mrs. Wallace H. Rowe, Mrs. James G. Rutherford, Mrs. George Munro, Mrs. W. L. Jones in turquoise blue crepe, Mrs. Daniel Leavitt, Mrs. John W. Hunter was in black crepe with velvet bracelets at the neckline. She chose a black crepe turban.

* * *

Not all of the social world attended the theater last night, however, for a number, and especially those in the younger set, preferred to attend the dance at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, given in honor of Miss Margaret Frederick, whose engagement to Charles Alexander Scaife was announced recently. Miss Frederick chose black velvet for the occasion.

Sponsor Concert

The group includes Mrs. C. D. Armstrong, Mrs. Erle M. Craig, Mrs. D. M. Clemson, Mrs. Ralph Flinn, Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee, Mrs. Lee M. Lockhart, the Donald McLeods, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Miss Helen Rauh and the C. E. Stevensons.

Others are Mrs. Nathaniel Spear, the Leo Halls, Dr. Rabbi Goldenson, the Junior Leon Falks, Charles A. H. Pearson, Lewis Winter and Harry A. Aaronson.

* * *

The officers of the recently reorganized board of trustees of the Thurston Preparatory School met this morning in the school house, Shady avenue. Mrs. J. O. Miller is chairman and Miss Ida M. Allerton, vice chairman. Mrs. Harry Hower, Miss Mabel L. Gillespie and Miss Mary McClure are on the finance committee and Mrs. Templeton Smith is publicity chairman.

CENTURY CLUB HEARS DR. MEYERS

'S.R.O.' Sign Out For Current Events Talk

There wasn't a vacant seat in the big auditorium of the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning when Dr. William Starr Meyers was welcomed for his second current events talk of the season. Indeed, seating space was at a premium, even the stairways being utilized for the time being.

Dr. Meyers chose to talk yesterday on the economic situation, its causes and possible remedies. Any form of help that is based on the continental European idea and not on the American idea of self-help will leave the country in a worse state than at present, the speaker declared. He described Socialism as "helping people in spite of themselves" and said the Anglo-Saxon idea is based on social legislation which is helping people to help themselves. Democracy, he said, is co-operation, while Socialism means outward direction.

He urged Americans to stop and think of what is being done towards relieving the present situation and to distinguish between the unemployed and the unemployable. Also he suggested that every thinking person give one hour of thought a week, saying that if this were done the world could be re-made over night. As an aid to clear, constructive thinking, he advised individual investigation into the problems of the unemployed.

Thinking Urged

Dr. Meyers criticized unemployment insurance and old-age pensions, remarking that the countries which had used these most extensively were in the worst state at present. Not over production, but under distribution, he said, is a cause of the depression. Unrestricted immigration over a period of a number of years, and the veterans' bonus legislation are other causes cited by the speaker. The world system of tariffs, which, however, should not be changed just now, was given as another cause. Dr. Meyers suggested as "a perfect mine" a tax on cosmetics, an idea which was greeted with laughter and a burst of applause. The spirit in which the individual accepts the present problem and meeting it with responsible, cheerful co-operation will have much to do with its solution, he said.

A special meeting of the East Liberty Woman's Club has been called for Thursday afternoon in the East Liberty Y. W. C. A. and will be addressed by Dr. Malcolm T. McEachern, associate director of the American College of Surgeons. He will talk on the hospital standardization movement. The social hour to follow will be in charge of Mrs. Alice Nicholson and her aides. Members are privileged to bring guests.

Doing its part to ease the present economic situation, the Mothers Club of Carrick is financing the clearing and beautifying of a tract of land along Saw Mill Run behind the Overbrook School. Last week a number of men were put to work and 300 feet were cleared. A little later, in co-operation with the Nature Club of the school, the plot will be planted with seeds and bulbs and flowers, contributed by the club women and their gardening friends.

SMART BETWEEN-SEASON HATS FORERUNNERS OF SPRING MODE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 19. — The bridge that unites the gap between the heavy felts and velvets of the winter millinery mode with the light, happy straws of the spring hat is usually woven of silken strands. For it is generally right after the new year that delightful little hats of taffeta, satin ribbon or grosgrain make their welcome reappearance. These little hats have in them something of the sweet breath of spring, they are so gay, so perky and bright. They pave the way beautifully for the first exciting real spring hats that to a great many women are the flowers that bloom in the spring. And this year with the vogue for the hat with its mass of closely pressed flowers, the new hats will indeed bloom. Just now the between-season hat is often of taffeta and nearly all models show some brim, however slight. The up-to-one side movement of the brim is still to be found in the new models. It creates a very becoming line, one that flatters almost every time, and this should be sufficient reason for its retention.

* * *

BLUE LOOKS as though it will be a banner color this spring, blue in all its shades and manifestations. Both of the hats shown today are in blue. The first is of bright blue felt and is by Le Monnier. The shallow crown is worn very much to one side. Piecings, joined by raised seams, are shaped to a point at the center of the crown, rather in an acorn shape. There is a narrow cuff brim and to hold the saucy little hat in place, a band of felt, tying across the hair in a bow-knot, encircles the opposite side of the head.

* * *

THE OTHER SKETCH shows a small, mid-season hat from Mme. Jose's newest collection. It is made entirely of navy taffeta with inset bands of the same taffeta stitched in close diagonal rows. The narrow brim is turned sharply up at the left side against two small blue and white ornaments of cut velvet resembling short brushes.

Here's Quick Way To Break Up a Cold

Makes You Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

THE thing to do with a cold is to break it up in a hurry—with something you know does the job; not to trifle with a lot of trick ideas and remedies. Colds are too dangerous to experiment with.

Get a box of Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon that miserable, aching feeling begins to go. The cold breaks up. The poisons are moved from your system. The world looks like an altogether different place.

Those results come because Hill's goes back to first principles by going to the seat of the trouble. It's not a newfangled fancy idea but a tried and proved way that's made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy.

Hill's costs only a few cents. Use it for quick relief after everything else you've tried has failed.

The Bedside Messenger

A BAD SPRAIN—a week in bed. The doctor's calm statement spelled disaster for Robert Speers. This was his busiest season. Orders were coming in; shipments had to be supervised. He had to keep going!

Painfully they helped him into bed. "Now Bob, do stop worrying," beseeched Mrs. Speers. But it was Bob, Jr., who saved the day.

"Dad," he suggested in the midst of his father's complaints, "you can do your business in bed by telephone. Get an extension put in."

Several weeks later Mr. Speers entered the Telephone Business Office. "We want to keep that bedside telephone," he said. "The whole family's using it, and while I was flat on my back, it brought me the biggest and busiest week on record!"

The whole family enjoys the convenience of ANOTHER TELEPHONE upstairs—it costs less than 3 cents a day!

Meeting to Discuss Tuberculosis Seals

A state-wide Christmas seal conference was to be held this afternoon in Fort Pitt Hotel preparatory to the annual meeting tomorrow of the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society.

Dr. C. Howard Marcy, medical director of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Kendall Emerson, managing director of the National Tuberculosis Association, will speak at a luncheon of the Pennsylvania Society tomorrow. Many authorities on the fight against tuberculosis are scheduled to speak tomorrow.

EAGER TO TELL ABOUT HER STOMACH

"I want to tell others about my experience with Pape's Diapepsin," says Mrs. B. Eastman, 138 California St., Denver, Colo. "I tried a lot of things for my indigestion, but none of them did any good. Then a friend persuaded me to take a few tablets of this wonderful preparation.

"Now I even eat cabbage without any distress afterwards. It used to cause real suffering. I am not nearly so nervous as I used to be; feel much stronger and better in every way."

A medicine must have real merit to bring forth enthusiastic statements like this. And when not one, but hundreds, even thousands, are telling the same story of success, there seems no reason to doubt the day-in and day-out reliability of Pape's Diapepsin to help stomach sufferers.

These harmless, candy-like tablets relieve the heartburn, nausea, gas, belching, headaches, dizziness and other symptoms of indigestion.

'INDEPENDENTS' IN BATTLE IN 12TH WARD

Each Faction Claims to Be 'Real' Wing of Party In Fight for Control

By MARK SHIELDS

Through the fog of Twelfth Ward politics one thing seems certain:

The Independents are busy organizing, and are so zealous that they are independent of each other, and anxious to fight about it.

Prepared statements by different factions show two groups at work, one headed by Frank A. DeSimone, Jr., and the other by Peter B. Beatty, each labeled as real chairman of the real independent ward organization. DeSimone contends that H. C. Workmaster, campaign manager for County Commissioner C. M. Barr, attempted to steam roller Beatty into the chairmanship, and that the local talent of the Twelfth Ward refused to stand for such tactics. The Beatty faction in the ward claims the DeSimone crowd never was independent until after the primary, when time came to perfect an independent ward organization.

Workmaster today issued a statement saying Beatty had been appointed ward chairman during the campaign by Barr, and that his work warranted his retention in that position. From that he branched off to an outline of the "personal sacrifices" the new Commissioners are making, concluding that they should not be "annoyed by petty grievances or jealousies."

More statements can be expected until Barr and Commissioner C. C. McGovern decide by patronage awards which chairman they recognize. Then there will be an independent group independent of the Independents.

SALES SWINDLE SCHEME BARED

Swindling operations by a man giving a Pittsburgh address are reported from Texas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas, and G. H. Dennison, of the Pittsburgh Better Business Bureau, has issued a warning to merchants of the district to beware of a man selling weighing machines.

Merchants in the West have been approached by a man who gives the name of T. H. Miller and says he represents the Comeo Novelty Company, Twenty-third street and Fourth avenue, Pittsburgh. Man and company are unknown here, according to Dennison, and the address is fictitious.

Miller has been offering to sell weighing machines for $27 cash payments. Many complainants report they paid the money and heard nothing more from Miller.

Discuss Pittsburgher As Auditor General

By MARK SHIELDS

In Pittsburgh there is beginning discussion of some Pittsburgher—no names yet mentioned—as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Auditor General. The incumbent, Charles A. Waters, of Philadelphia, has another year to serve, and then would like to take the line of succession which has become customary in recent years, moving into the office of State Treasurer.

Mark Shields

Both fiscal positions are elective offices, and nominations must be made at the April primaries.

Waters was elected with Philadelphia support, but subsequently some leaders in the East cooled toward him because of his support of Gov. Pinchot against the Philadelphia organization and his close affiliation with Joseph R. Grundy. So far there is no certainty that he will have the Philadelphia organization this year, though William S. Vare has always been his friend.

The argument for a Pittsburgh Auditor General is that the West should have this post if the East gets the treasury. Senator Frank Baldwin, of Potter County, veteran organization wheelhorse, has been mentioned as Waters' successor. Now the Pittsburghers engaged in the old home town promotion point out that he comes from a small county, with not more than 5,000 votes, and would lend no strength to a tickea, should a fight develop.

But this Pittsburgh talk is heard mainly in quarters hereabouts where Waters has enjoyed the pleasantest relation. It comes from sources which would like to see him continue in state office. So it may be that there is little hope a Pittsburgher will become Auditor General, but the raising of the issue may persuade the state organization and Philadelphia to sympathy for Waters.

* * *

Talk, Even if Whisper, Is Excellent Strategy

Perhaps if no opposition should arise to Waters the talk of a Pittsburgher for auditor general would never get beyond the stage of a small whisper. If this is true, the strategy is excellent, for in the existing political turmoil there would be no difficulty at all to stir up a fight on nearly any issue, and for practically every office.

If the advice of some of the saner thinkers among Pennsylvania Republicans, as well as some national leaders who do not partake of President Hoover's personal dislike for Gov. Pinchot, prevails, the Governor will go to the national convention as a delegate-at-large. There will be no effort to repeat the humiliation of 1924, when he was defeated by Ralph Beaver Strassburger.

Those who favor slating him realize fully that he is opposed to Hoover policies and to those of the Republican state organization. They are aware that on the floor of the convention, after failing before the resolutions committee framing the platform, he may champion a plank regulating power development and public utility expansion. He will also clamor for federal aid in the present economic difficulty, as well as planning for the future.

His proposals will not be popular in the convention, nor will they be adopted. He, together with the Progressive wing of the party, may assist in stirring dissatisfaction with the administration.

But, it is argued, he will succeed in this whether he is delegate-at-large or not. Certainly, somewhere in the state a delegate and alternate will be elected who would step aside for the Governor and give him the privilege of the floor. The saner minds, who have no fear at all he can jeopardize the Hoover nomination, plead that his virulence would be multiplied should he be humiliated by another defeat for delegate-at-large. He might even win such a contest, exemplifying in his candidacy opposition to Hoover.

* * *

Fear Governor Pinchot Is Being 'Presidentized'

One loyal organization man, with national connections, said today that the alarm with which Pinchot was being viewed by regulars was "presidentializing" him, that opposition to anything he undertakes, is making him a more effective opponent than he otherwise would be.

Actually, there will not be many Pinchot delegates from Pennsylvania. Some organization men here who have aided the Governor will not assist him to elect delegates in Allegheny County, but they want him as delegate-at-large to avoid a fight. They know it is more difficult for independents to elect delegates than Governors or County Commissioners, but trouble can be caused, even though the present Independent leadership here is far from unanimous for Pinchot.

Their delegate problem is worrying the leaders throughout the state. In some districts a plan is afoot to slate delegates who will not be pledged to Hoover, but who will vote for him. Dissatisfaction with Hoover is so keen in some sections that the organization fears a direct test in questionable territory, though the President's name may be on the ballot.

That, however, means little, as there is nothing in the Pennsylvania presidential primary law which binds a delegate to support the candidate who gets a majority of the votes.

When the door was broken down, the dog led the rescue party into the kitchen, where his mistress was.

An 18-hour check of street car service in Bellevue was oeing made today by Borough Council and the traffic department of the Pittsburgh Railways Company following complaints that the recent change in operation of the route No. 15 cars was an inconvenience to residents along the route.

Route 15 is operated in rush hours only. During the lull, Route No. 10 cars, running from West View, turn from Balph avenue into Lincoln avenue, to Freemont avenue and back through West View. Councilman M. S. MacDonald and Harrison B. Green, representing the borough, and Bernard Broderick, the railways company, began the check this morning. JOINT MEETING BY SPORTSMEN

Allegheny County Sportsmen's League and the Homestead District Sportsmen's Association will hold meetings this week to air reports of a special committee investigating the recent controversy between Gov. Gifford Pinchot and members of the State Game Commission. The Homestead organization will meet Thursday, as a combined session of the organizations will be held in the Chamber of Commerce Friday night. It was announced the public is to be excluded from this meeting.

The committee representing the combined clubs, with which local associations are affiliated, says it has made a thorough and impartial investigation of both sides of the controversy, having spent considerable time in Harrisburg with Gov. Pinchot and the department affected. The committee was appointed by Colin M. Reed, Washington (Pa.) president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs.

Dr. Samuel H. Williams, Pittsburgh, today was named by Gov. Pinchot to succeed Ross L. Leffler, of McKeesport, as president of the State Board of Game Commissioners.

Leffler, with four other members of the board, resigned last month after accusing the Governor of permitting "politics to interfere with the activities of the commission."

PITT PROFESSOR SCORES EASY DIVORCES

Dr. Johnson Believes Notice Of Marriage Necessary; Girl With Poise Best Wife

Announcement of bans as a means of preventing "gin marriages" and a commission of scientists to handle divorce cases, were urged by Dr. Roswell H. Johnson, of the University of Pittsburgh, speaking today before the weekly meeting of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, in the William Penn Hotel.

Dr. Johnson asserted that many young people after imbibing liquor freely decide to elope. A law requiring announcement of their intention five days in advance would do much to eliminate this practice, he said.

Concerning divorce laws he said:

"The divorce system in America is the worst possible. Divorce should be taken out of the courts and placed in the hands of a commission of scientists who would investigate details of marital trouble and try to bring about harmony."

Birth control was described by the speaker as "necessary to a successful marriage."

On choosing a life partner he advised young men:

"Beauty of face is vastly overrated. Often a girl with a beautiful face turns out to be a bad bargain. A peppy girl also is in much favor today. Many of these peppy girls become shrews after marriage. In seeking a wife a young man should look for poise, not beauty."

UTILITY RATE MEET SET

Opponents of excessive public utility rates planning to seek relief in lower rates through the ballot will form a permanent organization tomorrow night in the Western Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association at a mass meeting of municipal and civic leaders at Wilkinsburg High School.

Mayor Edward McCloskey, of Johnstown, is expected to head a delegation from Cambria County. Other counties whose municipalities have joined in the state-wide fight include Greene, Allegheny, Butler, Armstrong, Washington, Westmoreland and Beaver.

Swissvale will be among the new boroughs entering the fight. L. E. Webb and Allen Koch, representing the Chamber of Commerce, today are directing a score of volunteer workers canvassing the town for petition signatures demanding lower gas, electric, water and telephone rates.

Shack Fire Victim's Companion Sought

County detectives, aiding McKeesport and Port Vue police, continued search for the missing companion of Harry Karucheck, 62, of Port Vue, found dead yesterday in the ruins of a burned cabin. The missing man, Mike Dildush, police believe, may be able to clear up the mystery surrounding the fire which claimed Karucheck's life. Three other companions of Karucheck were committed to jail for 10 days on vagrancy charges after being questioned by county detectives.

AID TO JOBLESS HIS ONLY AIM, PRIEST SAYS

Would Seek Presidency Only As Last Resort to Bring Relief, Father Cox Explains

Father James R. Cox, "general of the unemployed army," today amplified his attitude on his reported candidacy of the "jobless party" by stating that his sole ambition is to help the unemployed, his people.

Asked to explain his position fully, he said:

"I want no higher position than that of pastor of Old St. Patrick's, and no higher title than that of the shepherd of the jobless.

"We have demanded specific things from Congress and the President to relieve the most deplorable situation that has ever existed in this country.

"I am not interested in my potential candidacy and if our demands are put into effect, there will be no need for political action on our part.

"But if our demands are not met, I will not turn my back on my people and if aggressive political action is necessary, we will meet in St. Louis to take that action."

Father Cox in interviews last Saturday said he may be a candidate.

White Inn Raided 2d Time in Week

White Inn, near North Huntington, Westmoreland County, was raided by federal prohibition agents early today for the second time in a week.

Fourteen gallons of moonshine whisky and three gallons of beer and alcohol were confiscated. Mike S. Pekich, 43, of 1154 Franklin avenue, McKeesport, said to be the owner, was arrested.

In the raid a week ago, Charles Bowen, 29, of Irwin, was arrested and two gallons of whisky and 25 gallons of beer were confiscated.

School Safety Drive Outlined By Eynon

School safety patrols to reduce traffic accidents among school children are all organized throughout the state according to Benjamin G. Eynon, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, in an address to the Pittsburgh Safety School, formed here under the auspices of the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council.

Eynon asserted no child under 16 should be permitted to drive an automobile.

Man Badly Injured, Train Fall Blamed

Marion S. Gambrell, 27, of Aberdeen, S. C., was fatally injured today in Pittsburgh Hospital suffering from injuries received when he either fell from or was struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad train near Homewood station.

Gambrell, who resided with C. Walker, of 510 Farnsworth avenue, Clairton, was found by a pedestrian who heard his moans. His left leg had been cut off above the knee and his right foot above the ankle.

JUNIOR LEAGUE OPENS DERAIN EXHIBIT

Confusing Interpretations Obscure Work of French Artist, Matisse Colleague

By PENELOPE REDD

The energizing younger generation has provided Pittsburgh with a first special exhibition of Andre Derain's paintings. Through January 30, Marie Harriman's examples by this oft-discussed artist may be seen by the public at the galleries of the Junior League.

The award of the Carnegie International prize in 1928 to Derain's gargantuan still-life of dead birds has probably prejudiced the older generation.

Derain's painting has well nigh been lost sight of in a plethora of literary interpretation in all languages. Born at Chatou, France, in 1880, he coincided in time with the twentieth century modernists that set the world of art askew.

At the school of Carriere, who was an extremist in emotional art, Derain met Matisse, a kindred spirit in dissatisfaction with the sentimental.

Inescapably Derain, essentially a traditionalist, became one of the "Fauves" or "Wild Beasts" that confounded the public and set the word wanglers into circuitous literary cerebrations.

Through all of the esthetic quicksands they explored from 1905 to 1914, Derain, from the evidence of his painting, seems to have gone along for courtesy's sake rather than from conviction.

Derain never seems to have been seriously diverted from his desire to remould the world of appearances into easily recognizable transcriptions of persons, places and objects which roused his pictorial appetite.

"Small Landscape" could be slipped into the Byers collection of old masters, now at Carnegie Institute, without the public resenting its presence.

Derain of the same breed as our own Thomas Eakins, is motivated by a sincere desire to paint his own version of the visual world.

The "Girl with Straw Hat," a sensitive rendition of adolescence, and "Head of a Girl" of Carmen-like intensity, well prove Derain's freedom from ambiguity.

Derain has undoubtedly derived more in the way of material profit from his association with the "Paris Painters" than any esthetic benefits.

7 HELD IN 'HILL' POOLROOM SLAYING

Police Batter Door, Find Body, When Jobless Boy Tells of Fatal Quarrel

Seven men were being held in Center Avenue Police Station today for questioning by homicide detectives in connection with the slaying of a young man, tentatively identified as Frank Brennan, of Washington street, during a brawl in a Hill district pool room.

Beaten to death by a chair, the man was found in the darkened poolroom of Patsy Gardena, at Bedford avenue and Washington street, by a squad of police led by Lieut. James Hoban, of Center avenue, after the doors had been battered down. The police had been summoned by Charles Sommers, of Newark, N. J., a jobless youth, who had gone to the poolroom for warmth and rest, and had witnessed the struggle.

TELLS OF QUARREL

Sommers told police he had been in the poolroom only a short time when a man he said had been called "Frank" walked up to one of the players and called him a vile name. The player pushed his annoyer away. Sommers said, and then his annoyer grabbed a cue stick and launched his attack. In the melee, which followed, the annoyer was felled by a blow over the head with a chair. As he fell, lights in the poolroom were darkened and players fled to the street, Sommers with them.

After he had been told "to mind his own business" because he had remonstrated when the pool room door was locked, Sommers said he began a search for a policeman. Failing to find one, he went to a newspaper and told his story.

T M DISCOVERED

During the investigation which followed the discovery of the body, an alleged moonshine establishment at 49½ Washington place, which has an entrance to the basement under the pool room, was raided and four men found sleeping there arrested. A quantity of moonshine also was seized.

The seven men held for questioning in connection with the murders are: Sommers, Frank Iorio, 18, of 914 Webster avenue; James Harvey, 17, of 917 Bedford avenue; Tony Mongrone, 18, of 51 Elm street; Steve Lipello, 17, of 919 Bedford avenue; Nick Paspalo, 16, of 921 Bedford avenue, and Millet J. Lewis, 55, of 1007 Bedford avenue. The latter, police said, is the owner of the building.

STOLEN BANDIT AUTO FOUND

One of the automobiles used by the bandits who have been preying on numerous persons in the county for the last 10 days was reported recovered today by McKeesport police. They said they found the machine of William Toth, 48 Bigelow boulevard, at Queen and Ash streets, McKeesport, yesterday.

The automobile was missing since January 2, when it was taken in a holdup in Schenley Park. Since then reports of numerous holdups in the vicinity of Wilkinsburg and McKeesport have led police to believe that Toth's car had been used by bandits.

Girl Takes Poison After Love Quarrel

Mary Yarmer, 23, of 112 West Stockton avenue, quarreled with her "boy friend" early today and took poison, according to police. Physicians at Allegheny General Hospital, where she was taken, said she would recover.

TAXICAB STRIKE TO CONTINUE

Taxicab union members last night pledged that they would not return to work until an agreement had been reached, according to an announcement made after the meeting sponsored by Father James R. Cox in the auditorium of Old St. Patrick's Church, Penn avenue. They indorsed Father Cox's candidacy for president.

Minor disturbances occurred during the meeting, police said. Marie Matosovsky, of 2828 Spring street, escaped injury when the cab in which she was riding was stoned in Spring street. Another cab was stolen in Station street. It was recovered.

Man Injured in Row, Police Hold Suspect

Struck by a glass ash try, Robert Cooley, 19, of 535 Morgan street, was in Passavant Hospital today suffering from a probable fracture of the skull.

Samuel Rubin, of 1034 Bedford avenue, was being held in Center Avenue Police Station. Police said Cooley, a Negro, was injured following his ejection from a store said to have been operated by Rubin at 2038 Wylie avenue.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

What a saving in money—
What a weapon against colds!

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC goes 3 times as far as other leading kinds, because it is 3 times as powerful. There's economy for you! It can be diluted with 2 parts of water and still kill germs in less than 10 seconds!

THE saving in money—$2, on every dollar bottle of Pepsodent Antiseptic—is one reason millions are changing from old-style mouth washes to the new. Old fashioned antiseptics must be used full strength in fighting colds and germs. The new discovery—Pepsodent Antiseptic—fights sore throat colds, even when diluted. It's perfectly safe full strength. But you can add 2 parts of water and kill germs in 10 seconds. If you always dilute your mouth wash, maybe you have been fooling yourself with one that is not effective unless used full strength. Make a mental note that Pepsodent Antiseptic is 3 times more powerful than other leading mouth washes—it goes 3 times as far—gives you three times more for your money—plus extra protection against sorethroat colds. It protects you, also, against halitosis—gives you 1 to 2 hours more assurance of a pure, sweet breath. Pepsodent Antiseptic offers you more—asks you less. It multiplies your safety but it divides your safety cost. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—the safe antiseptic that can be diluted and still kill germs.

BAD BREATH (Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds, proves its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). STOCKING S-T-R-A-I-N comes when you cross knees, bend, stretch, even put on your shoes! If elasticity has been destroyed, silk threads break, starting runs at once.

STOP THOSE RUNS

Preserve the ELASTICITY• that makes stockings WEAR

DO YOU KNOW what causes those ruinous runs?

New stockings are elastic—they give under strain, stretch and then spring back again. When this precious elasticity is destroyed, the silk threads, instead of giving, break under strain. It is then that runs start!

That is why Lux is made especially to preserve the elasticity that makes even the sheerest stockings really wear.

•The Lux Way to make stockings last twice as long

Wash after EACH wearing. Perspiration left in the stocking will actually rot the silk.

Don't rub with cake soap. It destroys the elasticity of the silk, making it lifeless, apt to break into runs, and ill-fitting. With Lux there's no rubbing. Even stubborn spots come out perfectly if you gently press in a few dry Lux diamonds.

Don't use too-warm water—this fades color. With Lux you use lukewarm water. No hot water needed. The tiny Lux diamonds—so sheer you can actually read through them—dissolve twice as fast, even in water at wrist temperature. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Wash this 2-minute way:

1. One teaspoon of Lux makes plenty of suds for each pair of stockings.
2. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze gentle suds through stockings, rinse well.

MILLIONS of women find Lux in the dishpan the world's cheapest beauty care for the hands. Costs less than 1¢ a day.

LUX for stockings 2 minutes a day keeps them like new

BRIDGE BATTLE LEAD WON BY 'OFFICIALS'

Culbertson System Players Trail by 3,705 Points; Radio Discussion Tonight

Exponents of the "official" system of contract bridge will start the second 25-hand play tonight with a lead of 3,705 points over their Culbertson adherents in the 100-hand tournament being held under auspices of the Sun-Telegraph and Pittsburgh Bridge Club.

The constructive test of systems is being held in the club's quarters in William Penn Hotel. All bridge players are invited to attend and hear expert discussions on the plays.

No great penalties were suffered in the opening round last night, in which 15 matches were won by the "official" players. The playing of the matches will be discussed over radio station WCAE, "Voice of the Sun-Telegraph," on the Hearst Globe Trotter period tonight between 6:30 and 6:45.

That the merits of the systems receive the fullest test, the teams play in separate rooms, with the deals from each table alternating to the Culbertson players from the "official" teams and vice versa.

The "official" players were Mrs. Grace Lear, R. J. Henderson, H. J. Bailey and George McClure. Culbertson exponents were Mrs. Raymond J. Burns, Simon F. Gerber, Ross W. Lappe and Bernard Summer.

All hands were outlined on a blackboard. Leading discussions on the hands were Mrs. H. J. Bailey, club president, and Mrs. Florence C. Douglas, who will be heard on tonight's radio interview. George M. Hosack and Ernest H. Heinrichs, Sun-Telegraph bridge expert, were referees.

In several sections of the country city workers moved out upon the land and began to till it, the owners, in most cases, offering no protest. The workers declared they were ploughing only enough to provide themselves with food.

The general strike reports said Communists and Syndicalists were organized for a concerted revolutionary attempt to implant "literal communism" in Spain.

Superiors of the Jesuits, following a revival of the anti-Catholic demonstrations which resulted in several deaths in rioting and the burning of buildings, ordered 200 novices to pack their clothing in preparation for leaving.

FAITH IN CITY CITED BY DUNN

Pittsburgh will emerge from present economic conditions stronger than ever, regaining any prestige she may have lost, it was predicted by Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Chamber of Commerce, in an address at the Westinghouse Club last night.

He was the first of a series of speakers who will discuss industrial Pittsburgh at the club.

BRAVE BLAMED FOR CONTRACT KICKS

THE SHIFT OF Art Shires from the American League to the National, via the minors, seemingly hasn't affected his penchant for stirring up a commotion. Though he has yet to don a National League uniform, he has managed to get himself in bad already with some of the magnates of the senior circuit, who insist that his tendency to pop off at the slightest opportunity is responsible for not a little of their increasing holdout trouble.

Art Shires

With Dazzy Vance, Glenn Wright, Alfonso Lopez, all Dodgers, Fred Lindstrom and Ben Chapman, recently added to the rebellious ranks, and the list of recalcitrants growing daily, club owners are blaming Shires in part for their multiplying difficulties in lining up their athletes for the 1932 season. They charge that the stormy petrel of baseball has thrown fuel on the flames and bred discontent among the other players by his recent published statement relative to his new contract with the Boston Braves.

STILL WIRED FOR sound, apparently and unmindful of the fact that he talked himself out of one big league, Shires told the world the other day that he was glad to note the Boston club appreciated his services, that he had just signed a contract calling for a salary of $11,000, which he said meant an increase of $3,000 over the sum he received from the Milwaukee club last year.

Shires' statement got a quick rise out of several of the big league magnates. They assert that Art's new contract doesn't call for anything like $11,000, and that he didn't get $8,000 in Milwaukee. They declare he drew only $7,500 in the American League, received considerably less in the American Association, and in coming back to the majors is getting no more than is generally given to a player who has yet to prove himself, which is quite a distance from $11,000.

THE DISTURBED MOGULS say that they are not interested in how much Shires may be getting, but that they object to his padding the amount publicly at a time when they are trying to convince their players that salaries have been cut all along the line, most of them reduced to figures below the sum Art says he will receive for his first year with the Braves.

They contend that when the other pastimers read the latest Shires bulletin they naturally became less inclined to sign at reduced rates, and that some of their newest holdouts are directly due to the broadcast of the gabby first baseman.

UNLESS A DISAGREEMENT arises over the financial division (based in New York at 37½ per cent to the champion and 12½ to the challenger) Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey will come together for the big title in June at one of the New York ball parks. That's the natural match for the championship. Public confidence in Sharkey has been almost destroyed by his erratic performances, but at that it must be admitted that he is the logical challenger and superior to the other would-be contenders in ability. That doesn't make the former sailor look like the probable winner, however. Joe Jacobs appears to have timed this match to nicety, by waiting until Schmeling had improved vastly and reached his peak at 26 and Sharkey at 29, perhaps had started to go the other way.

Moon Klinzing

CARL (MOON) KLINZING, veteran local basketball star, has decided to retire as a player and take up the role of an official, having been recently admitted to the Western Pennsylvania Basketball Officials' Association.

Over a stretch of a dozen years, Klinzing has been one of the outstanding floor stars in this end of the state, always a colorful, energetic and enthusiastic player. Few men in the court sport have seen more action than the rugged South Sider.

SOME YEARS AGO Moon starred for Duquesne University and later he played for the Ormsby Club and St. Canice's Lyceum. He gave most of his time afterward to Joe Goldman's famous Morry team, in which he is he attracted the attention of the Cleveland Rosenblums, playing for that team until the Celtics were shifted to Cleveland.

Klinzing still has a lot of good basketball left in him, but his friends believe that under existing local conditions he is taking the proper step and predict that if he shows the same ambition and enthusiasm in his new role he was wont to show as a player he soon will be one of the most capable and popular officials in the game.

MANAGER GEORGE GIBSON, of the Pirates, is due here early next week to put playing matters in shape for the spring training trip, on which the Buccaneers are to embark four weeks from tomorrow. By that time, if the Eastern National League club that is holding up Pittsburgh's deal for a minor league player by refusing to waive on Pitcher Steve Swetonic—incidentally that club is not Boston, as reported—continues to claim the North Sider, Gibson probably will have made up his mind whether to turn Swetonic over to the claimant on waivers or to keep him for Pirate use.

IF THE OBSTRUCTING club finally waives the minor league deal, of course, will be put through. Waivers were once obtained on Swetonic, but the time limit expired before a deal could be made owing to a delay at the other end, and new ones had to be asked.

Treasurer W. E. Benswanger and secretary Sam Watters report the receipt of a goodly percentage of signed Pirate contracts. As on every club, probably there are some players who have not come to terms readily, but on the whole the Pirate management is said to have had better than average success so far in rounding up its athletes.

POP WARNER'S many friends in this district would be pleased if Princeton rumors were to prove true, assuring the return of the veteran football mentor to the East to take the place vacated by Al Wittmer as coach of the Tigers.

But they're not taking anything for granted. Last winter reports had Warner going to Penn. A few weeks ago they had him going to New York U. and at different times he has been rumored headed for various other institutions. Yet he's still at Stanford. However, the present rumor may have a better foundation than the others, and at Stanford it is admitted that Pop is privileged to terminate his contract there if he cares to do so.

William S. Grafton

ONE OF THE best and most popular young tennis players of the district has passed on, and the net sport hereabouts has lost a brother act that was a big feature for a time—in the death of William Smeaton, 27. Bill and his older brother, Andy, formed the varsity doubles team for Duquesne University in 1930, and made a record that won for them a place among the best collegiate pairs that ever played around here. Bill was a fine player from almost every angle until illness halted his activities about a year and a half ago. He was an uncommonly hard hitter, with a terrific service and a forceful overhead game, and had loomed as one of the racquet pastime's best prospects in this region. This would have been his senior year at Duquesne had illness not forced him to leave school in January of 1931. Andy was graduated last spring and is now a student in the Duquesne School of Law.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 19—The London Tecumsehs will attempt to protect their two-game lead over the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets when they meet the Steel City skaters in an International Hockey League game here tonight.

The local icemen were nosed out of a place in the title play-offs last season when Pittsburgh finished with a sensational spurt, and they are eager to guard against a repetition of this history.

Although the visitors are in a slump, the Tecumsehs are not at all confident of victory, for they have not been able to score a goal against Pittsburgh in three games. Pittsburgh scored 1-0 victories over the locals here and in Pittsburgh, and held the Tecumsehs to an 0-0 tie in a third engagement in the Pennsylvania city.

On the occasion of their last meeting in Pittsburgh, the Jackets snapped a nine-game London success string.

Both teams, recently handicapped by injuries, now are back at full strength, and a close, hard game is anticipated.

TRADE FALLS THROUGH

The scheduled trade, between Pittsburgh and Syracuse, in which Charley Reid, Jackets' coach, had offered to buy Pete Pelangio, wing, and Rusty Hughes, defense, apparently has fallen through. Reid was to have given two forwards and a defense man for the pair of Stars.

Before leaving for London, Coach Reid indicated he would dicker with another club in the International circuit before the week is concluded.

DUKES DOWN BUCKNELL

LEWISBURG, Pa., Jan. 19—Duquesne University made it four victories in a row by downing Bucknell, 31 to 25, in a fast basketball game here last night.

Chenoweth, Bucknell husky, scored six field goals. Feldman and McGeever starred for Duquesne. The Dukes were leading, 15-13, at the half and never were headed. The lineup:

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE STEAMING KETTLE—Hanging over the sidewalk in front of the Oriental Tea Company, 37 Court street, Boston, is a huge gilt kettle, out of which steam continuously arises. The kettle, of a capacity of more than 227 gallons, is made of copper plated with gold leaf and is used as an advertisement. The "sign" was hung in place on August 3, 1873, and since January 1, 1875, its spout has poured forth a ceaseless and cheery steam-cloud. THE MAN WHO LIVED WITH A KNIFE BLADE IN HIS BRAIN—Linus Larson was a victim of an accident 30 years ago which rendered him unconscious and unable to account for what happened. He was subject to periodical losses of consciousness from that time until November, 1931, when he submitted to treatment. X-ray disclosed him to be suffering from the pressure of a knife-blade in the left frontal lobe of his brain. No one was more surprised than the victim himself, who, without knowing it, had been living with a blade in his brain for 30 years. Larson, who is 59 years old, lives at 10112 avenue M, Chicago. MATT RUPPERT—Matt Ruppert, pitcher of the Ruppert All-Stars indoor baseball team, of Chicago, pitched his sixth perfect game on November 8, 1931, when he defeated the Sheil Club, 10-0. During the last six years, Ruppert has pitched 200 no-hit, no-run games. He also has made some remarkable records in handball. In the latter sport he has won 51 consecutive matches in club tournament play. He lives at 2112 Wilson avenue, Chicago.

TOMORROW: THREE DEAD HEATS IN SUCCESSION.

JADICH JUNIOR WELTER KING

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Johnny Jadich, fighting his first championship bout, took the junior-welterweight crown away from Tony Canzoneri, winning a decision in 10 rounds here last night. Jadich weighed 136½, Canzoneri 132½.

Johnny Jadich

Jadich went down beneath a left to the jaw in the first round, but bounced up before the referee started counting and fought the Italian on more than even terms throughout the battle. Both fought a slam-bang contest, frequently standing toe to toe and swapping punches.

Only Canzoneri's junior-welter title was at stake. He still holds his lightweight championship. The decision was unanimous.

Vince Dundee, Baltimore middleweight, won a 10-round decision over Jimmy Smith, of Philadelphia, in the semi-final, but Smith gave such a gritty exhibition that the crowd cheered him for several minutes.

WELL KNOWN HERE

Johnny Jadich, it's new junior-welterweight champion, has fought in the Pittsburgh district several times in recent months. In his first local appearance at the Meyers Bowl, he knocked down Tony Herrera for a count of nine in the first round and won the decision. Then he lost a questionable decision to Sammy Dorfman in the same arena and later lost to Herrera in a return bout at Motor Square Garden, the bout being stopped at the end of the sixth round because of a badly cut eye. Jadich got off to a bad start in this battle, but dropped Herrera with a short right that sent Tony down clutching at his body just before the eye was damaged.

Princeton Denies Warner Sought As Coach

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 19.—(INS.)—Curtiss W. McGraw, chairman of the Princeton football committee, today denied a report that Glenn (Pop) Warner, Stanford mentor, was being considered as the next coach of the Tigers, to succeed Al Wittmer, resigned.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Jan. 19.—(AP.)—Commenting on reports that he was the leading candidate to become football coach at Princeton, Glenn Warner, of Stanford, said: "It was all news to him." Warner said he had not been in touch with Princeton authorities.

MAJOR STARS SIGN, BALK

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—New York baseball magnates engaged in the unusually brisk business of signing up their athletes for the major league campaign yesterday. Three new holdouts were added to a mounting list and four contracts were announced as signed.

The Yankees announced the signing of Lyn Lary, their shortstop, while receiving the bad news from Ben Chapman, of Birmingham, Ala. Chapman, leading baseball stealer of the major leagues last year, was offered the same sum he received in 1931 and said he wasn't satisfied.

The Giants exhibited the signed contracts of Sam Leslie, reserve first baseman, and Jim Mooney, star recruit southpaw. Travis Jackson, their captain and star shortstop, is satisfied with the terms offered and is sending back his signed contract.

The Giants' bad news came from Sarasota, Fla. Freddie Lindstrom was asked to take a 25 per cent cut, and is joining Bill Terry and Fred Fitzsimmons in the holdout ranks.

Brooklyn club had nothing except bad news to offer Al Lopez, who announced he was returning unsigned a contract calling for 10 per cent less than the $10,000 he received last year. Dazzy Vance, who was asked to take a 40 per cent reduction, planned to confer with Max Carey, new Brooklyn manager, before giving his final word.

Glenn Wright, shortstop and captain, also has opened negotiations for a better salary than the club offered.

The term of service for both Ingwerson and Nelson is understood to be four years.

OLD MAULER'S PILOT LAUDS CONDITION

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, will show in Pittsburgh the latter part of next month, likely at Motor Square Garden, although Duquesne Garden also is seeking his exhibition appearance.

Announcement to this effect was made last night by Leonard Sacks, Dempsey's manager, who slipped into town for dinner, took in part of the show at Motor Square Garden and departed before midnight for Buffalo. He will return here later to complete arrangements. He favors Motor Square Garden because of the fact that it is the regular home of indoor boxing here, although he said he wished it contained a larger seating capacity.

"I am sure Dempsey could fill a hall twice the size of your biggest arena," he said. "He never has boxed around here and this may be the only chance the folks will get to see the popular idol perform."

LEGS IMPROVED

Sacks then went on to tell that Dempsey really is in better condition than he has known in years. He had an operation performed at the Mayo Clinic a few years ago which corrected a condition that was affecting his legs and made him stagger and stumble in his two bouts with Tunney and also that with Sharkey and now finds the underpinnings in good shape again, according to his manager. The state of Dempsey's legs has been the chief concern of the skeptics who have doubted his ability to stage a comeback.

"Why do you think Dempsey is in there punching it out in these four-round bouts?" Sacks asked. "For the money? No, he has one idea in his mind and one idea only—and that is to do something that never has been accomplished before, to regain his lost title. The greatest thrill of his life was winning the championship. The only thrill that can surpass that one is to reach the top again. He's going to fight a big fight in July, and it won't be for the loser's purse, either."

SCHMELING VS. SHARKEY

Sacks was interested in the news from New York that Joe Jacobs, manager of Champion Max Schmeling, was prepared to accept the challenge of Jack Sharkey for a fight this summer.

"Why shouldn't he be?" Leonard smiled. "It's a big money bout and about all Sharkey will get out of it will be the chance to fight for the title. Jacobs won't give him a chance to make any money. But let's talk about Jempsey."

Accompanying Sacks here and sitting with him at the ringside at the Mose Butch-Jimmy Thomas fight was Sam Pian, of Chicago, manager of Earl Mastro, the featherweight star.

SIGNS FOR BOUT

RENO, Nev., Jan. 19.—(INS.)—Jack Dempsey, hot on the comeback trail for added fame and fortune, today signed for his first appearance in a California ring in years when he agreed to battle four rounds at Stockton, January 25. An opponent is to be selected. Dempsey was guaranteed $5,000 or one-half of the gate receipts.

Between Rounds

Apples Meisner is back in the local field, ready to resume the promotion of shows at the Moose Temple, commencing next Tuesday. Thereafter he plans to run every Monday night. With Motor Square Garden dark on Monday nights, Meisner on Wednesday, McKeesport on Thursday and Eddie Kaufman's new arena in the Pythian Temple on the Hill on Fridays, there certainly should be a busy timetable and plenty of work for the fighters who have been going on short rations for some time.

Another prominent ringsider at the Garden last night was Jack Perry, old local welterweight boxer, just in from Los Angeles with his good middleweight, Kid Sabrino, an Italian youth, who has stood up under the test on the Coast good for whom Perry predicts a bright future. Sabrino will take a week or two to become acclimated and then will be ready to bid any of the topnotch 160-pounders here.

Promoter Jim Mosier, of McKeesport, is trying to stage a bout between Eddie Mosier and Bobby Vogel to complete his preliminary card for the Stiff Gold Cup affair show Thursday night. He has Jimmy Grove and Matty Goliath in the semi-final and Amos (Beanie) Jones and Chuck Zelnara in the opener.

Surgeons Fail to Find Bone Chip in Star

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 19.—(AP.)—Surgeons have failed to locate a bone chip in the ankle of Russell (Runt) Calloway, of Huntington, star hurdler of West Virginia University track team.

Surgeons who performed the operation yesterday said they deemed it inadvisable to penetrate the ankle muscles when the chip was not found near the surface.

Calloway will be able to resume training within 10 days, but whether the ankle condition will hamper him in his running cannot be determined at this time, Track Coach Art Smith said.

SCOTTDALE FIVE HERE

THOMAS NEW LOCAL RING CHAMP

BUTCH VICTIM OF UPSET DEFEAT

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Amateur bouts, Howard A. C., Beaver Falls, Pa.

Mickey Cohen vs. Willard Brown and Jackie Shupack vs. Roy Mitchell, 10 rounds each, West Palm Beach, Fla.

Henry Firpo vs. Bud Saltis, 10 rounds, Indianapolis.

Milton Sloves vs. Ralph Dimone and Jimmy Abbey vs. Thys Menger, 6 rounds each, New York.

George Manley vs. Matt Adgie, 10 rounds, Akron, O.

Charley (Red) Rosette vs. Nick Palmer, 12 rounds, New York.

Alfredo Gaona vs. Ceferino Garcia and Armando Santiago vs. Cyclone Fragoe, 10 rounds each, Los Angeles.

Peter Sarron vs. Chico Cisneros, 10 rounds, Jacksonville, Fla.

Little Jimmy Thomas is the new bantamweight champion of Pittsburgh. Alternately boxing and fighting in collected and workmanlike fashion, the popular Hill district Negro took the play away from Mose Butch, Oakland southpaw, to upset the dope and win by a wide margin in their 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden last night.

Thomas was batting for Al Brown, the world champion, having been signed to meet Butch after Brown had been forced to cancel a match with Mose in the same ring a week before because of illness.

STYLE BAFFLES MOSE

It was the second clash between the pair, Mose winning the first one, an open-air affair at Hickey Park, Millvale, with Thomas being baffled by the victor's southpaw stance. Last night the tables were turned and it was Butch who was mystified. Thomas had solved the riddle of fighting wrongfooters and boxed out of a crouch, bobbing under Butch's left swings until he had Mose figuratively shooting at the moon. Mose looked bad as he failed to connect, and Thomas mixed ribroasting righthand counters to the body and occasionally shifted the attack to the head.

Neither man ever was in serious danger, although there were slips to the floor on both sides. Thomas got off to a big lead, winning the first four rounds, slowed down to be held even in the fifth, was shaded in the sixth, won the seventh, boxed on even terms in the eighth and carried the last two rounds. He weighed 120 pounds, with Butch a quarter of a pound heavier.

BAXTER BEATS DELMONT

Charley Baxter, of the North Side, 136½, outpunched Danny Delmont, of Chicago, 138½, in the eight-round semi-final. It was a tough battle, with Delmont suffering a cut left eye in the opening round that handicapped him the remainder of the way, but coming back in the next three rounds to outfight his man and then wilt toward the finish. The referee's vote decided the winner.

Bobby Stewart, Negro, of the Hill, 133, bested Tony Vecchio, of Fairmont, W. Va., 136½, in the second bout, and Bobby Burns, of Swissvale, 129½, returning to the ring following a layoff, won over Johnny Montebano, of Braddock, 134½, in the opener.—HARRY KECK.

GENEVA MEETS TITAN FIVE

GAMES TONIGHT

Duquesne vs. Georgetown at Washington.
Geneva vs. Westminster at New Wilmington.
Fairmont vs. W. Va. Wesleyan at Buckhannon.
Bethany vs. Wash-Jeff at Washington, Pa.
St. Vincent at Thiel.
Morris-Harvey at Glenville.

By JESS CARVER

There will be little if any love wasted in Westminster College's bandbox gymnasium tonight as the United Presbyterian Titans and Geneva's crack Covenanters take pot shots at each other in a Tri-State Conference clash. Varsity teams of the two institutions always have swung from the canvas when clashing in the past. Tonight hardly figures to prove any exception.

The contest heads the night's college basketball program for the district. Duquesne's Dukes inaugurate a three-day stand in Washington, D. C., by taking on Georgetown. Fairmont tackles West Virginia Wesleyan in Buckhannon and Bethany and Wash-Jeff go it at Washington.

GENEVA POWERFUL

A year ago Geneva served the Titans quite a shock by knocking the then unbeaten conference leaders off in the first game of their two-game series in a great ball game played at New Brighton. The score of that tussle was 24-21. Later Westminster evened the score, but the defeat did the proud U. P. team little good, even though it walloped Geneva later on.

Tonight Geneva holds a slight edge over the New Wilmington entry. Both have been defeated by district rivals to date, Geneva by Allegheny and Westminster by Grove City. The Covenanters, ably coached by Ken Loeffler, with a veteran, formidable appearing squad, look to be the equal of any team in the section, and despite the handicap of performing on a foreign court, and a court on which they never have clicked any too well, may be rated about 10 to 9 choices.

CARLSON UNDECIDED

Pitt's footballer - basketballers are still very much in the Carlson picture. The good Dr. Red Carlson is undecided about his starting lineup against Tech tomorrow. He's guessing, and while he's guessing, so is Tech. The Tartans don't know whether they are going to face that football lineup at the start tomorrow, the second team or the varsity.

Carlson worked his new talent to a fare-thee-well yesterday and will give them another drill today. If he doesn't use all the big fellows he may work one or two of 'em in, say with Jim MacMurdo at center and maybe Rocco Cutri at one of the guards. MacMurdo can get up in the air and is tall enough and rugged enough to give Eddie Stentz, Tech's towering pivot man, a workout.

Carlson hopes his varsity performers will be back in stride again for tomorrow. The second stringers, who held N. Y. U. better than even after they replaced the gridders Sat'day, went through a strenuous session yesterday, during which they had various and sundry faults corrected. Tech will see plenty of the Brown-Hughes-Bogda-Wrobleski-S. Kowallis combine tomorrow night.

Coach Buzz Hogan put his Tartans through their paces yesterday. The Skibo mentor was far from pleased over the showing the boys made against Grove City, when the Techs dropped their decision to a district team. Lou Jagnow's injured hip is responding right nobly to the care of Trainer Bert Munhall, who hopes to have the Toledo star ready for the Pitt game.

MAX TO FIGHT GOB FOR TITLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling, the German youngster who won recognition as heavyweight champion by defeating Jack Sharkey on a foul two years ago, has decided to honor a pledge he made that night—and give Sharkey a chance to redeem himself.

"I am going before the New York State Athletic Commission at its regular meeting today," his manager, Joe Jacobs, announced, "and I will inform the members of the commission that Max Schmeling will defend his heavyweight championship of the world against Jack Sharkey in June."

NO ARTICLES SIGNED

Jacobs has signed no articles for a match with Sharkey and apparently the Boston sailorman had not been informed by Jacobs of Schmeling's decision. When he learned of it from newspapermen he was elated.

Jacobs said his champion was open to bids from any promoter for the match, that the bout would go to the highest bidder, but that all things being equal, the preference would go to New York City and the Madison Square Garden Corporation.

Shortly after Schmeling defeated Sharkey in four rounds June 12, 1930, at the Yankee Stadium, on a claim of foul, he was suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission, and his championship claims revoked when he refused to go through with a return match with Sharkey.

REINSTATEMENT LIKELY

James A. Farley, chairman of the commission, was reluctant to discuss Schmeling's chances of reinstatement in advance of the meeting. He indicated, however, that the German, his manager and trainers, would be reinstated here as soon as they signed articles for the Sharkey go.

"We'll fight Sharkey and lick him in June," said Jacobs. "If Dempsey comes back, then he'll get his chance in September."

GOB ELATED

BOSTON, Jan. 19.—(INS.)—Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, was elated today when informed Max Schmeling, titleholder, would meet him in a 15-round title bout in June.

"I knocked Schmeling out with a left to the body in our other fight," he said. "His claim of foul was unwarranted. I feel I will beat the German in decisive style when we meet again."

LOCAL DIAMOND STAR HONORED

Frank Packard, snappy East End diamond star, whose exceptional work for Charlotte, of the Piedmont League, caused his purchase by the Baltimore Internationals, is the recipient of new honors awarded him by fans of the section in which the Pittsburgher performed in 1931.

Packard won fourth place in a contest which determines the five most brilliant sports figures in North and South Carolina. The contest is held under the auspices of a Charlotte (N. C.) newspaper.

Three stellar football stars won the first three places in the ballot, the fans giving Packard a total of 384 votes to land him in fourth place.

Frank is exceptionally popular in the Piedmont circuit. A few years back he had a short tryout with the Pirates, but the local youngster was lacking in experience. Scouts who watched him last season pronounce him an outstanding recruit. Packard appears determined to reach the majors, and he may do it by way of Baltimore. The native son is both an outfielder and infielder, but he seems to have a preference for the pasture work.

By JULIUS LEVIN

Seven important scholastic basketball games feature today's programs in the City League and W. P. I. A. L., six of them involving sectional leadership.

Schenley stakes all of its hopes of remaining in the Section I championship of the City League by engaging the undefeated Connelley aggregation at Schenley, while Fifth Avenue, bidding for its fourth straight league triumph, faces a tough rival in Taylor Allderdice.

Should Schenley succeed in snapping Connelley's four-game winning streak and Fifth defeat Johnny Irwin's passers, the Fifth Avenue quintet will move into undisputed possession of first place. Neither Connelley nor Fifth displayed impressive form in last week's games and a big improvement must be flashed today if they hope to keep their slates clean.

FIRST PLACE AT STAKE

First place also will be at stake in the Section II race as South Hills invades Allegheny to meet Harry Springer's passers. Allegheny shows four straight victories, while South Hills has won all of its three league games. This should prove one of the feature attractions of the day.

While most of the W. P. I. A. L. contenders are idle until Friday, this group will not be without some high-class attractions today. Monessen has a chance to take undisputed possession of first place in Section V by engaging South Brownsville. Charleroi, tied with Monessen for first place with four victories and no defeats, meets the undefeated Duquesne University Freshies at Charleroi in a non-league fray.

ROX FACES TEST

McKees Rocks and Mt. Lebanon, deadlocked for top honors in the Section IX race, each showing four straight league victories, clash at McKees Rocks. The result likely will play a big part in determining which of the two quintets will enter the W. P. I. A. L. playoffs, as virtually all of the other contenders are practically out of the running.

Ed Paulie's Swissvale quintet and Walter Pickett's Edgewood passers, tied for first place in Section XI, clash at Edgewood for the top position. Both teams have been showing great form of late and their battle today should prove a thriller from start to finish.

Attactive non-league games find Munhall at Scott High, Ambridge at Ellwood City, Ben Avon at East Pittsburgh, Carrick at Millvale, Carrick at Shady Side Academy, and Coraopolis at Wilkinsburg.

An executive board which is to have final authority in athletic affairs of Duquesne University has been appointed by Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president. Two priests and a lay alumnus compose the board and are to work in conjunction with Elmer F. Layden, director of athletics, and other heads.

The recent growth of athletic affairs at Duquesne made necessary the formation of the executive board of athletics. The members include: Chairman, Rev. William E. O'Donnell, dean of men; Rev. Joseph P. Danner, treasurer, and Leonard P. Kane, 5100 Penn avenue, a prominent alumnus of the university.

BOONE, PEPPER LEAD I. L.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Athletes of a Pittsburgh hue were potent batters in the International League of last year, according to the official batting averages given out for publication today.

Outfielder Ike Boone, erstwhile Robin and Coast League slugger, who played for Newark, and Outfielder Raymond Pepper, of the championship Rochester team, shared the batting honors of the league. Boone led the circuit by a tiny margin over Pepper as Ike batted for .356.

STRONG NEAR TOP

Ken Strong, former football star of New York University, was a star batsman of the league as he played the outfield for Toronto. Strong batted .340.

Forrest (Woodie) Jensen, clever Pirate recruit outfielder, who was farmed out to Newark for a two-month period, proved himself one of the outstanding hitters of the league before he was recalled. Woodie batted .333 in 51 games.

Denny Southern, performing in the outfield for Baltimore, batted .327. Denny led the league in larceny by stealing 33 sacks.

Oakland Bill Regan, after leaving the Pirates for better or worse, starred at bat for the Orioles as he played second base. Bill treated himself to a .321 average, thus proving the contention of many of his boosters that he is a real hitter.

HARRIS DOES WELL

Joe Harris, despite several serious surgical operations for ailments that forced him out of the big show, was able to swat the ball to the tune of .311 as he played 70 odd games for Toronto and Buffalo. The doughboy-athlete always could hit hard, but he finished the season in rather poor health.

Charley Hargreaves, who did quite a long catching trick for the Buccos, was behind the plate in no less than 124 games for Newark. Hargreaves apparently made a strong effort to land the pennant for the Bears and Manager Al Mamaux, but they were beaten out at the finish by Bill Southworth's Rochester team. Charley batted .300 for Newark.

BIG TEN PLANS POLICY CHANGE

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 19.—(INS.)—Every varsity athlete in the Big Ten will be required to submit an affidavit showing the sources of his income for the year if a measure discussed by a University of Wisconsin athletic committee today is adopted by the conference.

The committee, which has been investigating intercollegiate athletics for more than a year, in its report, which is to be submitted to the university faculty February 4, says:

"The feverish effort to secure the matriculation in the university of promising schoolboy athletes, and the scheduling of contests solely for commercial reasons cannot continue."

Forbes

Bankers Move to Stop Wild Foreign Loans

By B. C. FORBES

AMERICAN MONEY will not be sent out of the country as thoughtlessly, shortsightedly, recklessly as before.

I learn that leading bankers handling foreign loans decided some time ago that their methods must be reformed, and that an informal agreement to accomplish that end was reached.

Mr. Forbes

Crossing the Atlantic with a business-getter for a New York financial concern, I got from him three years ago a rather astounding picture of what was then going on. New York had men drumming up loans in foreign countries, each competing with all the others in offering alluring terms to prospective borrowers.

Whenever intimation spread that a country or municipality or large corporation was receptive to the idea of borrowing money here, a swarm of scouts from American underwriters flocked to the spot like bees 'round honey.

THIS COUNTRY has had no association or organization charged with any responsibility for seeing to it that American investors received a square deal when buying foreign securities sponsored by our own bankers. Too many institutions and firms, it is now discernible, were governed mainly by an itch to bag commissions.

There was not enough thought or study given to the probable final outcome of the unrestricted lending to all and sundry in any and every part of the globe.

It is only fair to point out that two or three of our very largest international banking houses did not join the unseemly scramble. They sent forth no drummers.

Unfortunately, the move to correct the foreign financing evil was not made until unconscionable damage had been done. Whether Congress will consider that the wholly unofficial understanding or agreement among the bankers can be counted upon to prevent future abuses remains to be seen. If restrictive legislation can be passed, the bankers will have nobody but themselves to blame.

Fear is subsiding.

A READER quotes a rich man as saying:

"I wouldn't dare buy an expensive car just now because of what people might say."

Hasn't this rich man the wrong slant? Is it not the ardent desire of everybody that those who can should go ahead and spend money rationally? Wouldn't you—I would—like to see wealthy individuals and families resume buying high-priced cars and every other product appropriate to their station in life?

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., has been employing a large force of workmen on his country estate, the newspapers chronicle. Instead of incurring criticism, his action has inspired commendation. Dwight Morrow did the same thing last winter, and planned similar action this winter. Did his neighbors dream of accusing him of indulging in ostentation or extravagance? No, the entire community applauded him for furnishing employment.

Similarly, the purchaser of a new automobile need have no fear that he will be criticised. Rather can he rest assured that his action will be interpreted as stimulating employment and helping to quicken recovery.

So, Mr. Rich Man, please go ahead and buy your expensive car!

Predict Reduction In Discount Rate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Belief in informed quarters here is that the Federal Reserve's intention to halt deflationary tendencies through credit easing operations will include reductions in the rediscount rates. However, it is not possible to say at this time when the reductions may take place or from what center they may originate.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Advance | Local Market Dull

STOCKS IN DULL TRADING RISE SLOWLY

Firm Tone Given Virtually Entire List With Many 1 to 3 Gains Appearing

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP)—With a fresh head of steam, the rail shares moved forward in today's stock market, after sliding down grade in yesterday's late trading.

A firm tone was imparted to virtually the entire list and net advances of 1 to 3 points were numerous. The market was heavy until in the early dealings but soon began a slow climb. Trading was dull.

Issues up about 2 to 3 points include Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and New Haven. While Norfolk and Western made an exceptional advance of more than 5. Issues up a point or so included United States Steel, American Can, Case, Sears, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Public Service of New Jersey, Alaska Juneau, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake and Ohio and others. General Electric however was a soft spot, sagging about 1½ points to within striking distance of its bear market low.

Accompanying the upturn in the rails was a fresh wave of hopefulness over the prospects of a satisfactory agreement at the Chicago conference on wages. One rumor circulated in brokerage circles was that the Brotherhoods might accept a 10 per cent cut, leaving their counter demands subject to mediation. News that the Lackawanna employes had voluntarily offered to accept a 10 per cent reduction was regarded as a good omen.

The money market was slightly firmer with virtually no offerings. Call money reported under the official rate of 2½ per cent, while outside funds had been offered at 2 per cent yesterday. The firmer tendency appeared to reflect [illegible] the Federal Reserve. Federal Reserve funds were in somewhat more active demand.

Reserve Members Loans Decrease

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The Federal Reserve board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks on January 13 shows decreases for the week of 32,000,000 in loans and investments, $138,000,000 in net demand deposits, $11,000,000 in time deposits, $31,000,000 in government deposits and $27,000,000 in reserves with Federal Reserve banks. Loans on securities amounted to $1,660,000,000, a decrease of $27,000,000. All other loans totaled $1,271,000,000, or a decrease of $9,000,000.

Oil Conservation Program Needed

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Overproduction of oil in both fields and refineries is the big problem of the industry, it was voiced at a meeting here of the directors of the American Petroleum Institute.

It was the consensus of the petroleum leaders that the present overproduction problem is "in no sense a temporary one" and that what the country needs is a long-term program, designed to conserve the nation's petroleum and save the industry from drowning in a flood of oil.

Bituminous Coal Production H'g'er

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Production of bituminous coal gained sharply during the week ended January 9 as compared with the previous week when New Year's holiday was observed in most centers. The output for comparable periods, as measured by the Mines Bureau, follows:

Week ended January 9, 6,930,000 tons; previous week, 6,050,000 tons; same week last year, 9,184,000 tons.

Bank of England To Meet Big Loan

LONDON, Jan. 19.—It is believed that the Bank of England has accumulated the dollars and francs necessary to repay the $150,000,000 Franco-American loan at the end of this month, but the government is likely to remain the buyer of francs and dollars for several months in view of the $400,000,000 Franco-American loan maturing in August.

General Electric Orders Decreased

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Orders received by the General Electric Company in 1931 totaled $252,021,496 compared with $341,820,312 in 1930, it was announced by Gerard Swope, president.

Orders for the quarter ended December 31 amounted to $49,221,480 compared with $74,168,480 in the final quarter of 1930, a decrease of 34 per cent.

U. S. Daily Average Oil Output Drops

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 19.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended January 16 totaled 2,191,383 barrels, a decrease of 28,075 barrels daily from the preceding week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

New York Curb Market — Latest Financial News

COTTON SHOWS EASIER TONE

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Cotton opened steady today, 2 points up to 3 points off, with near months relatively steady on trade buying and some southern selling on the later deliveries. March sold at 6.80 on the call.

Otherwise orders appeared to be fairly well divided, but after selling at 6.80 on the call, March reacted to 6.73 and the market showed rather an easier tone at the end of the first half hour.

The market sagged off to 6.71 for March and 7.02 for July later in the morning, making net losses of about 7 to 10 points under continued scattering liquidation. Rallies from declines in the stock market seemed to bring in a little buying later, however, and the market at midday was quiet and steady, at rallies of 2 or 3 points from the lowest.

Wall Street Perplexed By Strength Displayed In Wheat

Wall street is admittedly perplexed by the current strength in wheat which yesterday duplicated its rise of Saturday to rule 5 to 6 cents a bushel above the lows of last Friday. Hard headed observers are unable to ascribe the rise to any change in fundamental conditions, and taking the reverse spread between our market and Liverpool into consideration, are inclined to be skeptical. They question also that the current upswing is sponsored by the same interests who bulled wheat last fall when the May option was carried up some 25 cents a bushel from the October 5 low of 48¼ cents. Wall street reverberates with reports of a powerful aggregation at work in wheat, and names prominent in New York and Chicago banking and grain circles are freely mentioned.

The heavy premium demanded of borrowers of Steel common, far from operating as a sustaining influence for the general market, proved in the nature of a boomerang yesterday. The penalty of ¾ of 1 per cent demanded for the privilege of using the stock for delivery against short sales might reasonably have been interpreted as denoting a scarcity of the issue in the loan market. But with some 8,700,000 shares of the issue outstanding, this high charge, meaning a cost to the borrower of $37.50 a day for the use of each 100 shares borrowed, rendered the speculative fraternity skeptical and led to considerable realizing.

What may prove to be one of the most important developments growing out of recent and current conditions is the tendency to balance budgets. The apparent sincere efforts which are being made to bring about such a balance has been quite a factor in creating more hopefulness among students. With the United States government taking the lead, which should be followed by states, counties and municipalities all over the country, a situation will be eliminated which has been disturbing to many of the most thoughtful leaders of banking and industry in the United States.

During the early months of last year, when the Lambert company's stock was being pressed for sale and declining quite sharply, there was considerable talk that the company would not be able to earn the large dividend of $8 a share being paid on the stock. At that time interests informed on the company's affairs were assuring their friends that the distribution would be covered in 1931, although it was evident that the company's business and earnings were declining. Their opinions will prove to be correct, for Lambert will show a balance of about 20 cents a share over its dividend requirements for last year.

Wall street students are discussing the satisfactory financial condition shown in the statement of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco recently. It is believed that part of the buying which has come into the stock represented accumulation by southern interests for a long-term investment position. Advices received here state that many southern investors have been talking of the safe income return obtainable on the shares.

A somewhat better demand has been noted in S. S. Kresge recently, due to views in some commission houses that earnings of the company for last year will not be far from the $1.90 a share reported for 1930. The argument is made that the stock is selling out of line with others in its class and on its probable results.

Railroad to Use $240 Profit for Track Repair

FREEPORT, Ill., Jan. 19.—(AP.)—One of the smallest railroads in the world is going to have some improvements because business was good in 1931.

The road, known as the Hanover Line, is 2½ miles long, and operates between Hanover and North Hanover, connecting at the latter place with the Chicago Great Western.

Its 300 stockholders will not receive any dividends this year, but the annual report, just issued, showed the road earned 71.3 cents a share during 1931. The $250 profit was put back for use in resurfacing the tracks.

Leverage to Interest Traders When Market Resumes Upward Trend

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

LEVERAGE WILL BE a consideration of major importance to speculators when business resumes an upward trend and the prices of stocks start on their next major bull movement. It will also be a factor of interest to investors wishing to add chances for enhancement of capital to a return on their money.

Common stocks are said to be subject to leverage when there are other securities which have a preferential claim on earnings and assets. The effects of leverage have been demonstrated on the adverse side during the past two years. They will operate on the favorable side when business and stock values start to improve.

When business is declining, a corporation with a large volume of bonds and preferred stock outstanding is at a disadvantage. A slump in profits is entirely reflected on the income applicable to the common stock until the margin of profit in excess of interest and preferred dividend requirements is entirely eliminated. This results in the earnings per share of a company with securities senior to the common stock declining more sharply than those of a company without funded debt or preferred stock.

* * *

To Benefit from Next Increase in Business

ON THE OTHER HAND, the next gain in business will be reflected more sharply on the earnings applicable to common stocks which are junior securities than upon the stocks

THE BEAST OF THE CITY

A Story of Fatal Beauty That Lurks In All Big City Jungles

By JACK LAIT

Ed Becomes Drunk, Plans to Violate Trust Placed In Him by Brother

(Adapted from the original motion picture story of W. R. Burnett with screen play by John I. Mahin; produced by Cosmopolitan Productions and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.)

CHAPTER XI.

"Ed," said Jim, as he tapped the desk with his pencil, "you're a hotheaded fool. I shouldn't even give you a break, but I'm going to——"

"And that's?" asked Ed somewhat sulkily.

"The North Side National Bank is going to move two hundred grand worth of gold bullion tomorrow afternoon and——"

"Well, what's that got to do with me?"

"Just this. The president don't want to make any circus of it. He's going to have it taken out the rear door in some office furniture and moved in an ordinary truck. I think it's a smart idea—even if it don't work. All he wants is one guard, and it's your chance. There can't be any tip-off because not even the drivers of the truck will know what they've got."

"Well, I don't see such a bonanza break in that."

"We'll see about that later. If you can guard that fortune in bullion and it arrives okay I'll put through a recommendati——"

"All right. I'm with you. Slip me the lowdown."

"You're the guy that's buying the furniture and you want to see it loaded, okay. You're just 'round to see that they don't chip the corners. And you ride on the truck."

"All right, Jim—thanks. I'm sorry the way I acted and I guess you're right. What time do I report?"

"Be at the bank at 10 in the morning. Ask for Mr. Smythe. And then do your stuff. Remember, you're my brother."

"Yeah — You remember it, too!"

"And when are you coming home? You haven't been in now for three days. What the deuce do you do with your nights?"

"Oh, just inhaling a little life——"

"Well, watch your step, kid. I'm givin' you this job because I can trust you. Better come home tonight an' get some rest——"

"I'm fine—I got a party on tonight."

"We'll be there tomorrow — I'll call Smythe and tip him."

When Ed had left, the chief reached over and pressed a buzzer. Both Mac and Tom came in.

"Come on, honey, you need a rest," insisted Daisy.

"Nother li'l drink first—nother li'l drink," and Ed almost fell off the divan.

"All right," said Daisy, motioning to Cholo. "One little drink and then we'll go inside—there's too much noise out here."

"Goin' take the two hun'red grand myself—and we'll scramble somewheres—anywheres—"

Cholo brought the drink. Daisy winked at him. When Ed had taken it Cholo helped the girl lift him to his feet. His hair was dishevelled and his tie was twisted around in back of his collar.

"Mike's my frien'," cried Ed. "I want everybody to know Mike's my frien'." He put his arm around Cholo's shoulder. The latter made a sickly attempt at smiling.

Cholo and Daisy led him into the bedroom. He sank down on the bed. Daisy made a motion to Cholo and he nodded and walked out. She began to stroke Ed's hair.

"Don't you want me to take the two hun'red grand, so we can scramerine?" asked Ed, a hurt expression on his face.

"Yes, yes, dearie, but where are you going to get two hundred grand?"

"Get it from the Nor' Side Nash'l Bank. Gonna move it in office funnisher tomorrow at 10 o'clock. I'm gonna guard it. Guard Hell. I'll take it like this — and he reached out and made the motion of grabbing up a sack.

"Two hun'red thou in gold. Take it an' nobody'll know nothin about it—leave it up to li'l ol' Ed. How about another li'l ol' drink?"

"Oh, Mike!" called Daisy, "bring in two shots, will you?"

Cholo came in two glasses and a bottle in his hand.

"Is Mike your friend?" asked Daisy.

"Shure is—Mike's my pal—come on, Mike — have li'l snifter."

But without waiting for Mike to take a drink, Ed grabbed the bottle and poured himself a wicked one.

"Why don't you and Mike organize?" asked Daisy.

"Sgood idea — whatcha say, Mike—want help me make two hun'red grand?" and Ed peered at the other owlishly.

He helped himself to another drink. Cholo was all eyes and ears. There was a leer on his thin, rat-like lineaments.

"Wanta go in with me—we make two hun'red gran'." Ed was maudlin now. Cholo, who, all his life had lived by his conscienceless cunning, turned his head a moment in disgust at the sight of the drunken cop. He, Cholo, never allowed himself to get drunk. He must have his wits about him every minute. Cholo never had read Nietzche, but Cholo lived dangerously.

"Sure, I'll go in with you," he muttered. "What's the layout?"

"Well, 'slike this," and Ed lurched forward, then straightened up and looked Cholo earnestly in the eye. "Gotta guard two hun'red grand for Mr. Nor' Side Nash'l Bank. Gonna move it in a van. In office funnisher. Ten o'clock tomorrow mornin'. With me?"

Ed held out his hand. Cholo grasped it with his own limp, clammy paw.

"Sure, I'm with you."

"Leave him alone, Mike," said Daisy. "Let him sleep awhile and we'll all talk it over later."

Cholo, his eyes blazing with greed and passion, looked at Daisy and then nodded. He left the room. Outside he gave the office to two men and drew them in the corner. They were "No-neck" Mike Mahaffey and "Ginger Slim" Morgan.

"This dick's gonna be on a truck tomorrow with 200 grand in gold, and I'm all set to go in on the job," he informed in a whisper.

"Okay!" exclaimed "No-neck."

"Okay!" seconded "Ginger Slim."

"But he don't get no cut in—see?" continued Cholo. "We'll steam him up and frame him an' give him the works. We'll split three ways—I need the jack an' I'll grab the gal—see?"

Bruno and John Wolzyn played accordians to the piano accompaniment of James Lostler.

Through the co-operation of Eagle Scout Alex Farmer, the Schenley High School Band, which made its debut with Schenley Chapter last week, will appear at the Junior Komic Club meetings every Saturday until further notice. Following is the personnel of the band: Savitz and Mead, second clarinets; Engleberg, first clarinet; Dedloch, solo clarinet; Hopf, alto saxophone; Walley, baritone saxophone; Joynt, tenor saxophone; Hennon, first trombone; Swaney, second trombone; Shear, solo trumpet; Franklin, second trumpet; McInnes, third trumpet; Swindler, bass; Hartigan, drums; Jarrarth, director.

The program at the Mt. Oliver Harris was under the direction of Vera Liebau. Jack Jenkins, popular entertainer, introduced the acts.

The outstanding number on the Mamie Barth Studio program, presented at the Davis Saturday, was little David Carey.

PRINCE (AMBRIDGE)

Contributing to the program were Jimmie Brown, Marjorie Estap, Peggy Estap, Winifred Barcley, Marie Simon, Jane Smith and Ellen Llewellyn. The winners of the dance contest were Steve Nestic and Helen Sheleheda.

The result of the election at the meeting Saturday of the independent chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-New Carnegie Theater Junior Komic Club was: Grand Jester, Stephen Mykita. Board of Governors, Charles Laffey, Mike Pazanickya, William Brady, Mary L. Harris, Jean Datig and Catherine Chappel.

A Reply to Mr. Anonymous

A CHICAGO reader, who prefers to remain anonymous, raises the very devil with me in a letter that must have scorched the postman's hands as he delivered it. The Chicago gentleman—I take it for granted that no lady would use such language—points out that my column is devoted entirely too frequently to stories of the more bitter type. He says he is getting tired of irony that is dragged in by the heels.

"If you think I ever read your junk," he tells me, "you're very much mistaken. (Editor's note: Then how do you know anything about it?) Occasionally, however, I do get stuck for something to read and I am forced to turn to your page. Then what do I find?

"As far as I'm concerned, that's awful. Can't you print any stories that turn out well? There must be plenty of them around because the whole world isn't dead just yet. I'll admit that I'm on the verge of starvation and that I haven't any prospects, but what's that got to do with it? Some day I'll sit down and write you my life's story. There's bitterness enough in it to last you a year.

"But I'm getting away from what I started to say. All I can tell you is that, as far as I'm concerned, I don't want any part of your column from now on."

Funny you should bring this matter up, sir, just when I was about to do an ironical story for today. I don't mean to be bitter. Far from it. I'd love to write plenty of Pollyanna articles about the birdies and the trees and how the beautiful flowers grow in the Springtime. There'd be but one trouble with that, sir. Nobody would read it.

Accordingly, I do the best I can under the circumstances. I try to report the emotions of the humans I see around me. If those emotions are sometimes bitter, why not say so? If a story is highly ironic, why not print it?

Let's get down to business. When I came into my office today I had two stories I was going to write. Let me explain to you why I was going to write them. Just pull up a chair and make yourself comfortable. You see what a decent guy I really am? Yes, sir.

In an upper section of New York City, there was a haberdashery shop that you and I will call Martin's Men's Shop. I could give the man's real name, but I would only be hurting his family. And I can see no reason for doing that. I've often been kidded, Mr. Anonymous, for giving wrong names or for using first names. But I take that rap gladly, sir. Why hurt when it isn't necessary?

Things were going very badly with Mr. Martin, the owner of the shop. He had notes to pay and obligations to meet. He was not happy in life—and he saw the handwriting on the wall.

For a long time he thought and he worried. The more time went by the less hope he could see for the future. He had a large stock on hand, but business was at a standstill. And he finally made up his mind that he could fight it through no longer. He was going to take the easiest way out.

Perhaps I shouldn't call it the easiest way. Maybe it's the hardest way. Some say yes; others say no. But no matter. On a chosen evening he proceeded to seal all the openings and to go through with the dreaded act. At 2 o'clock in the morning the coroner pronounced him dead.

Now follow me closely, sir. Exactly one hour later the Golden Fleece Club, located directly above Mr. Martin's shop, went up in flames. The engines roared along. Streams of water were poured into the cafe. And before the first was completely extinguished every article in Martin's shop was damaged beyond repair by the tons of water.

The dead man had been fully covered by insurance. If he had waited a few more hours he would have been on easy street!

That's one story I had in mind, Mr. Anonymous. Was it too tough for you to handle? Let me give you an idea of the other.

I sat in a night club in Harlem the night before last. One of the toughest birds that ever lived came and sat beside me.

On the man's right hand two fingers were bandaged. I asked him what had happened. Let me quote him to you, Mr. Anonymous, and see if you understand why I thought it was a story.

"It was some bum over in Astoria," he explained to me. "I wanna tell you, Mark, that in all my life I never met such a rat. Look at what happens:

"I gets a call from this guy and I goes to see him. He tells me that business is lousy, and that he wants to start a fire that will burn out his stock. He tells me that he's heard all about my work and he asks me how much I'd charge for the job. I quotes him my usual rates, which is 20 per cent of the insurance.

"Then the muzzler grows curious. He gets very friendly-like and asks me how I goes about it. Wit' me, it's a case of man-to-man so I tells him just what I usually do. I gives him all the dope about the candle, the string, the papier-mache and the gasoline. He listens very close. And when I gets all through, he shakes my hand.

"Thanks," says he to me. 'I'll probably hire you, but I wanna think it over for awhile. I'll let you know.'

"So I goes away. I thinks it's kinda funny that I don't hear nothin' from this guy, but I guess it's maybe 'cause he got a little yellow. Yesterday mornin' I picks up the paper and what do you think I find? I read about a fire in that guy's place. The dirty, yellow rat has done the job himself after me tellin' him just what to do!

"That's how I busted these two fingers, Mark. They don't look so good, but you oughta see his jaw. Can you imagine a double-crosser like that?" . . .

* * *

You see, Mr. Anonymous? Just two little stories that cropped up in a day. They happened, sir. They happen every day. Just bits of life that I try to set down on paper. Am I really so wrong, sir? . . .

Defective Automobiles

Percentage of Machines Failing to Meet Test Proves Need of Inspection.

An unsatisfactory state of affairs is disclosed by the report of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles on the results so far noted in the compulsory inspection of automobiles. The bureau states that 80 per cent of the cars examined have failed to meet the test!

Four out of every five cars have been defective in one respect or another. Two-thirds of the machines have been found to have imperfect lighting systems.

The requirements this year are stricter than usual, to be sure—but no stricter than a conscientious driver who desires to imperil neither himself nor others would wish them to be.

Take the matter of headlights, for instance. The Bureau of Motor Vehicles has made a careful study to determine what adjustment of the lamps is most conducive to safety. Everyone should be glad to conform to the requirements laid down as a result of this study.

The percentage of machines failing to pass the test is evidence that the inspection was needed. It should help to prevent accidents.

The Cause of the Wreck

Another Accident, Due to a Boulder on the Track, Suggests Need of Protection Against Landslides.

An express train on the Pennsylvania Railroad was wrecked yesterday near Freeport. A large boulder had fallen on the track from a steep hillside, and the locomotive, striking it, was derailed.

There were scores of passengers on the train. None of them, fortunately, was injured, but it is not hard to imagine that some slight change in the circumstances—a little greater speed, for instance—would have brought tragedy.

Another wreck occurred in the same neighborhood from the same cause not long ago.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is very vigilant to prevent accidents and has a splendid record of safety. The management probably has already thought of the obvious suggestion we are going to make, but we hope that not only the Pennsylvania but also the other railroads serving the Pittsburgh district will act on it.

The suggestion is this: Let a careful examination be made of all cliffs and steep slopes and hillsides alongside the right of way, and where boulders and rocks and loose earth are found which, if dislodged by heavy rain, might cause a wreck, let them be removed.

Forests and Floods

Restoration of Timber at the Headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela Is Proceeding.

After the great flood of 1907 the businessmen of Pittsburgh employed engineers to study the rivers and tell us how we might prevent another such inundation. One of the things that the engineers recommended was the restoration of forests on the denuded hillsides at the headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela. They said the spongy forest floor would act as a reservoir and prevent rainwater and melting snow from running off too rapidly.

After years of effort the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh succeeded in inducing the United States Government to establish the Allegheny and Monongahela National Forests.

The annual report of the National Forest Reservation Commission shows satisfactory progress in the restoration of timber. Of the 372,874 acres thus far designated for purchase for the Allegheny National Forest, 350,003 have been acquired. Two-thirds of the area of Elk County is now in the forest, and half of Forest County, half of McKean County, and more than one-third of Warren County are also included.

Of the 273,428 acres designated for purchase for the Monongahela National Forest, which lies mostly in West Virginia, but partly also in Virginia, 262,547 acres have been acquired.

Under skillful forestation trees are being re-established on the barren hills. The full effect on the rivers will not be felt, of course, for years; but in the meanwhile these national forests are serving a useful purpose as playgrounds.

A Healthy Year

The Low Mortality Rate From Disease Is One of the Bright Spots in the Current Picture.

The year 1930 was the healthiest in the history of Pennsylvania, and the State Department of Health reports that the statistics for 1931, not yet completed, indicate that it will make an equally good showing.

Let those who can see nothing but gloom in the picture of current conditions consider the low mortality rate from disease, especially the decline in the typhoid and diphtheria rates to unprecedented figures.

It would be a mistake, however, to go to the opposite extreme of optimism and say that conditions could scarcely be better. As a matter of fact, although not yet reflected in the death rate, tuberculosis is on the increase.

The Department of Health says the spread of tuberculosis is traceable to poor housing conditions, inadequate food and inadequate clothing.

Another urgent reason is accordingly presented for energetic measures to relieve the distress of the poor.

Astonishing Growth

Allegheny County's Progress During the Last 30 Years Augurs Well for the Future.

Thomas A. Dunn, president of the Chamber of Commerce, presented at the membership meeting a series of interesting figures showing how Pittsburgh and Allegheny County have grown during the twentieth century.

He placed in parallel columns statistics for 1899 and the corresponding figures for 1929. The growth which occurred during the 30 years was astounding.

Wealth, as represented by real estate and taxable property, increased fourfold.

Expenditures for public business grew from $12,347,311 to $51,554,767.

The average annual wage per industrial worker grew from $540 to $1,691.

The figures are worth study. This giant growth augurs well for the future. The impetus gained in the forward movement is bound to carry the community further. It is unreasonable to suppose that after advancing at headlong pace for 30 years we can abruptly and completely stop.

After Youth

Youth has such a glow and gleam
All must grieve to see it going.
Yet it is a silver stream
Through time's desert swiftly flowing;
All who clutch with eager hands,
All who love its joyous tune,
See it sinking in the sands,
Watch it vanishing, too soon!

Yet if, for your love alone,
Still youth's glamour you are casting
After golden youth has flown:
If he finds your spell is lasting;
If your smile, which brought delight
In youth, holds him subject after—
Then the toll of time is light:
You can face the years with laughter!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—In the majority of theaters of late a closing notice is posted on the call board opening nights. This dodges the two-week notice with pay for players. If the show takes on before the end of the week and promises continuance the order is removed.

Thus producers shear productions of the gambler's chance. More than half the legitimate theaters have been dark all season. Some 100 productions have lasted only a week and at least 20 have folded after the first performance. Cain is planning to build a bigger theatrical warehouse.

Jed Harris and Chester Erskin, "wonder kiddies," who lit several Rialto witch-fires of illusion, are reported treking to Hollywood. The Shuberts and Al Woods, with a half dozen other independent impresarios, have emerged from bankruptcy baths. And others are poised for a similar dive.

While the cry is the talkies have ruined the legitimate, the truth is talkies have fared no better. The best analysis is that the theater has merely suffered along with every other endeavor in the whirlwind of the depression.

At no time in the history of the Rialto has it presented such a forlorn front. An army of capable performers—many stars of great magnitude—have had no engagements for two years. Scores have drifted from fine apartments to shabby rooming houses.

So desperate were conditions recently that the cheaper vaudeville houses were paying $1.50 for single performances and many of recognized talents were appearing under assumed names with identities further hidden by the camouflage of makeup.

Another outlet was the neighborhood movie houses where stars of three years ago did monolog bits. On upper Broadway also was a legitimate theater featuring "guest stars" in stock. One play featured six players whose names burned simultaneously in Broadway lights five years ago.

The Atlantic has been rough going, great guns, for the slim passenger lists the past few months. Mountainous swells swept entirely over some of the largest ships. Many bogged into port three and four days late and upon three different crossings not a passenger left staterooms from Cherbourg to New York and vice versa.

Ray Long is a sturdy sailor who weathers the sea's capers gallantly. During one momentous crossing our cabins adjoined. It was a continual toss from Havre to Fire Island. I did not stir out of my bunk but once to totter to breakfast, and that was only after his insistent pleading. While I sat wanly on the edge of the chair in a Camille wilt, he—with tweedy breeziness—said briskly to the swaying steward: "Brings us, to start, two helpings of onion soup." I gave him a despairing glance and made it back to the cabin in nothing flat. And just made it, too.

Onion soup for breakfast sounds as though it might be a gag from Mr. Minsky's burlesque, yet it is quite continental. It is listed in such epicurean establishments as Foquet's, Foyot's and La Rue. And is the dawn piece de resistance at Les Halles.

The Duke of Manchester and his bride have been renewing acquaintances on their honeymoon trip which will end at a rented villa at Havana for the winter. His Grace boasts a Spanish strain and may eventually settle down permanently. His bride, tall, brunette and athletic, is the daughter of a wealthy English ironmonger and is known to New York, having frequently visited the Fred Pusinellis. The Duke, of course, is almost as well known in New York as in London, and hundreds are privileged to call him by his familiar nick-name "Kim."

I'm not afraid of dying...

But I'm terribly afraid of not living.

It is so easy to be born, to exist for a certain number of years, then to die...without ever having really lived! So easy to escape life. I do it constantly. Just a little evasion...a little dawdling...and the trick is done. And I never dream of calling it cowardice.

"I'm just playing safe," I say. "Thinking things over. As soon as I know what's best to do, I'll act. It would be crazy to act before then, wouldn't it? No telling what sort of a mess I might get in. Then everyone would blame me...or laugh at me...or get mad at me.

"And even if other people didn't know a thing about it, I might make myself awfully unhappy by rushing ahead. I'm safe now. There are, of course, many things I don't like about my present situation. Irritating things. I'm forced to make perfectly needless sacrifices...endure senseless hardships. And I'm not making the progress that I should. But suppose I change—where'll I land? I'll have to adapt myself to all kinds of new conditions and people—and I hate strangeness. I'll be lonely and frightened—Yes, it's certainly a better policy to 'stop, look and listen' before I go ahead."

So I reason to myself—
And the days go by—
And the months go by—
And the years go by—
AND LIFE, ITSELF, GOES BY WITHOUT MY HAVING LIVED IT.

Then some day, I wake and look back at the lost years. And what do I do? Do I acknowledge that I am to blame for their loss—through my own cowardice and laziness? No, indeed! I blame everyone but myself.

BUT IN MY SECRET HEART I KNOW, ALL THE TIME, THAT I ALONE AM TO BLAME.

But weren't my arguments sound and reasonable? Of course they were. I would have been uncomfortable under new conditions. I would have faced strangeness and risk. People might have laughed at me, misunderstood me, even tried to punish me. But what of it?

WHY HAGGLE AND HESITATE ABOUT FACING RISK IF THAT IS THE PRICE OF A WIDER, MORE ABUNDANT LIFE?

And it certainly is. Life costs plenty. Life costs comfort and safety, pleasantness, peace of mind—all the things that are dear to sluggish souls.

BUT LIFE IS WORTH ALL IT COSTS!

Look at the great and free and powerful souls. They have been terrified by these chances which terrify you and me—but they have taken them. And in taking them, they paid heavily in loneliness and discomfort and actual peril. BUT THEY ALSO PROFITED ENORMOUSLY.

Dare to live. Will you make mistakes? Of course you will. But no mistake can possibly be as costly as the tragic blunder of not daring to live at all. And no humiliation, no punishment, no loss can be as bitter as the thought of a life that went unscarred—and unfulfilled because IT NEVER DARED TO TAKE A CHANCE.

Isn't It So?

It's better to have loved and lost than to have married and still be losing.

It's hard to find a man who likes to be reformed by a fellow no better than he is.

Some women think they are society leaders when they get their first invitation to a tea.

Text for Today

If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him.—James, 1:5.

The Successor of Justice Holmes

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The American people will take a greater interest in the appointment of the successor of Justice Holmes on the United States Supreme Court than they ever have in such an appointment in all our history. It is a matter which the average man in the street is thinking about these days. There is a reason for this popular concern which ought to be known to the appointing power.

Whether justified by the facts or not, it unquestionably is true that the average man feels that the highest judicial tribunal in the land has been carefully chosen to put the "conservatives" in the majority; that these conservatives have been primarily interested in property rather than in human rights; and that explains why there is so much affection, such as seldom goes to a judicial officer, for Justice Holmes and Justice Brandeis. There is a feeling that the people have representation in these two men. Now one is gone; and Mr. Hoover must choose his successor.

To name as a successor to Holmes a lawyer, however distinguished at the bar, whose prepossessions are with the great corporations and not with the people; one who feels, as the old Federalists felt, that the primary function of the court is to be the last refuge of the privileged would make a bad impression and detract just that much from confidence in the court. It is possible for the President to find a man of the economic and social views of the retiring jurist.

It does not matter so much what his politics may be. Justice Holmes is a Republican; Justice Brandeis is a Democrat; and yet both are champions of public rights. There are reactionary Democrats as well as reactionary Republicans; and it is possible to find a progressive Republican if the President feels that the court, overwhelmingly Republican, cannot stand another Jeffersonian.

Politics Must Play No Part

In the event the President names a man of reactionary economic and social views, it is to be expected that the Judiciary Committee, of which Senator Norris is chairman, will make an issue on the confirmation. It is not essential nor desirable that the court must be "the last refuge of privilege." The highest public interest is involved in the choice of a liberal.

The American people have a right to a liberal. Nor does it make so much difference from which section the new man comes; the important thing is the intellectual slant of the man. Politics must play no part.

The Supreme Court very early was put into politics, rather into the fight between the people and the exploiters by the Federalists. When in 1800 these were overthrown and, with the election of Jefferson, it was definitely determined, in the language of Henry Cabot Lodge, that this should be "a democratic republic," an amazing thing was done.

It was determined to reduce the people's victory to a nullity by packing the federal courts with representatives of the repudiated school of social and political thought. Thus in the closing hours of the Adams administration many new courts were created, and on the very day preceding the inauguration of Jefferson the administration was feverishly busy making out the commissions of these men who were expected to neutralize or destroy the effect of the people's victory through the courts.

As late as 10 o'clock the night before Jefferson went in, John Marshall, then Secretary of State, was hectically engaged in making out and delivering these commissions, and he himself was named Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Nothing more outrageous and defiant of public opinion has ever been seen in the courts, and it was so outrageous that James Madison, "father of the Constitution," and Jefferson's Secretary of State, refused to deliver some of the commissions.

That far back there was a school of political thought which assumed that the function of the courts is to defeat the will of the people in a land of democracy.

We Cannot Afford To Go Backward

No one would have the President name an arrant demagogue to succeed Justice Holmes; for he had liberal views on social and economic matters without being a demagogue. A justice who would disregard the letter and the spirit of the law to satisfy a momentary impulse of the people would be as vicious, and no more so, as one whose impulse would be to interpret laws against the public interest and in favor of the powerful.

In men of the type of Holmes and Brandeis we have the proof that men of the finest intellect, the noblest principles and the greatest courage can be found among men of liberal views.

If there ever was a time when public policy demands of the President a thorough liberal, known to be a liberal, for the Supreme Bench it is in these days of crises when so many men, bitterly affected by the wreckage about them, are growing suspicious of government itself.

To name any other type as a successor to Holmes will open the flood gates of criticism on the President, which would not be to the advantage of the court. It is not an ordinary appointment to the bench that confronts the President. We cannot possibly go forward in selecting the successor of Holmes; we cannot afford to go backward.

* * *

One Who Looms Large

It is absurd to say that there are not two types, almost two groups, on the Supreme Bench today. Whenever a debatable decision is called for, which involves the conflicting interest of the public and of the powerful interests, it has been the custom in the speculation to put some men on one side and some on the other—because of their well known slant on social and economic questions.

It is amazing how many very ordinary men in lowly positions can guess correctly on the alignment of the judges in such cases. And always Holmes and Brandeis have been counted on the liberal side.

Now one of these unhappily is gone. One of the same high type, the same scholarship and erudition, the same liberal viewpoint, the same courage must take his place.

It were ridiculous to say that none such can be found; but they are not abundant among lawyers and jurists who have the professional and judicial status called for in this instance. Among those mentioned is one who looms large, with a reputation not only national, but international among judges and lawyers, and that is Benjamin N. Cardozo, Chief Justice of the New York Court of Appeals.

The sectional objection is grotesque under the existing circumstances; the fact that he is a Democrat, remote from active politics for many years and far beyond the reach of partisan influences, cannot be urged against him. Another admirable choice would be Walsh, of Montana. It is not merely the appointment of the successor of a justice that is to be named; it is the appointment of the successor of Oliver Wendell Holmes.

An Amusing Story

Of course Holmes was not a name of meaning to everyone. An amusing story told me by a certain former Senator, who attended a White House dinner some years ago and was made the dinner companion of a charming but uninformed young lady, illustrates. The Senator found difficulty in finding any subject within the reach of the young lady. Finally Justice Holmes' name came up, and the charming lady turned to the Senator. "Who is this Oliver Wendell Holmes?" she asked. "He is the son of Oliver Wendell Holmes, the poet," he replied. "Oh yes," said the lady brightening. "The English poet."
